Meditations, Hamon's, for Every Day in the Year. For the Use of Priests, Religious, and the Faithful. By Rev. M. HAMON, S.S., Pastor of St. Sulpice, Paris, author of the Life of St. Francis de Sales and of Cardinal Cheverus. Translated from the twenty-third revised edition by Mrs. Anne R. Bennett-Gladstone. With an Alphabetical Index. 5 vols., 16mo, cloth, each with a steel engraving, net, $5 00

These meditations are published in five handy volumes, which can be conveniently carried in the pocket.

The subject of each meditation is first given, together with indications of the resolutions proceeding from it, and a spiritual nosegay.

Then follows the meditation proper, divided into two, three, or four short points, either on a mystery of our holy religion, one of the Christian virtues, or a celebrated saint.

Morning and evening prayers are included in each volume, so that no other book is necessary for daily devotions.

In the original French, these meditations reached the enormous circulation of 92,400 copies.

Hamon's doctrine is the unadulterated word of God, presented with unction, exquisite taste, and freed from that exaggerated and sickly sentimentalism which disgusts when it does not mislead. Mrs. Bennett has done her work well; her English rendering is as elegant and smooth as the original, and this is no faint praise. As far as the printing, binding, and size of the volumes are concerned, this publication does honor to your celebrated establishment.—ARCHBISHOP CHAPELLE, of Santa Fe.

What is aimed at is a compendium which will be reliable, accurate, succinct, and yet, by means of the abundant and very valuable references it contains, also copious. This the learned author has attained. The result is, he brings before us, in a clear, succinct, yet interesting form the active energy of the Church in her missionary work, showing us how she is ever advancing into the darkness of error with the torch of truth in her hand, how she is attacked at every step by the spirits of evil, and how she fights valiantly the battle of right against wrong, of civilization against barbarism; how, in fine, animated by the irresistible Spirit of God, she bears down before her all opposition, and establishes everywhere centres of light and spiritual life. It is universally conceded the best work of the kind in English; in proof of which we give the following extract from the Dublin Review:

"... Taken altogether, for the practical purpose of a collegiate course, the best work of the kind yet placed in the hands of the English-speaking student."

History of the Catholic Church. Adapted from the original of Rev. L. C. BUSINGER, by Rev. RICHARD BRENNAN, LL.D. Together with a History of the Church in America, by JOHN GILMARY SHEA, LL.D. With 90 illustrations. Crown 8vo, cloth, ink and gold side, $2 00

The Reverend author of this book has succeeded in reducing to an order satisfactory to the understanding and the hearts of all, all that the Church has done for the enlightenment of minds, for the purifying and elevation of souls, for the happiness of families, and for the blessing and prosperity of nations. It is solid in its contents, original in its plan, and dignified and comprehensive in its style.

Portraits and autographs, palaces, churches, landscapes, plans, and genealogical tables have been brought together at the cost of singular labor and with no little expenditure of money. The majority of them, we may venture to say, have never been seen before. . . . The book is a rich quarry from which all future writers respecting St. Aloysius are bound to draw.—The Month.

Life of Mlle. Le Gras Foundress of the Sisters of Charity and Co-operator of St. Vincent de Paul. From the French, by a Sister of Charity. 12mo. cloth, net, $1 25

All that is generally known of the woman whose name in the world was Louise de Marillac is that she founded "The Congregation of Daughters of Charity." But the circumstances connected with her foundation, the great virtues she practised in a life of seventy years, the active part she took in almost all the charities of St. Vincent de Paul, are sealed letters to a generation eager for biographies and curious for historic exhumations. To supply this want has been the aim of our author.

St. Chantal and the Foundation of the Visitation. By Monseigneur BOUGAUD, Bishop of Laval. From the thirteenth French edition by a Visitandine. With a Preface by His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons. 2 vols. 8vo, each with a full-page portrait of the saint, net, $4 00

St. Chantal is one of the greatest of modern saints. In turn a daughter, wife, mother, mistress of a household, the centre and delight of an intellectual circle; later on, a widow, a religious, the Foundress of the Visitation Order, and toward the end of her life burdened with the direction of over 80 convents—in all these difficult positions she acted with a loftiness of purpose amounting to heroism. Monseigneur Bougaud's "St. Chantal" is the only complete and satisfactory Life of the Saint, the only one that presents a faithful portrait of her. It was compiled from original manuscripts in possession of the Visitation Order. These manuscripts, written during the Saint's life, but secretly and without her knowledge, were in the seventeenth century distributed among the different convents of the Order, in which they remained unpublished and absolutely unknown till they fell by chance into Monseigneur Bougaud's hands.

Visit to Europe and the Holy Land. By Rev. H. F. FAIRBANKS. 12mo, cloth, $1 50

This is not a mere guide-book, but a vivid narrative of travels. The author describes what he saw and the impressions he received during a visit to some of the most interesting countries of the Old World, from the point of view of an honest and unprejudiced American. There has been a long-existing need, but a poor supply, of books of travel written by travellers who are able to see with honest eyes and who do not go abroad with preconceived prejudices, which they are determined to confirm by perverted facts and short-sighted observations. The author has tried to supply this deficiency.

—— How They Worked Their Way, and other Stories. 12mo, cloth, gilt. With a Frontispiece, $1 00

["How They Worked Their Way"] has all the charm and fascination so characteristic of the author's productions in a lighter vein. Incidents amusing or thrilling follow one another as naturally as the bloom the bud. There is, too, a richness of epigram rarely to be met in books of the kind. . . . There is not a boy or girl who, after taking up the book ["The Flower of the Flock"] will not be reluctant to lay it aside till he or she has seen Miles and Reginald and their interesting friends safely out of their troubles.—Ave Maria.

Fabiola; or, the Church of the Catacombs. By CARDINAL WISEMAN. Illustrated Edition. With a Preface by Rev. Richard Brennan, LL.D. With numerous Engravings, descriptive of the Catacombs and of the manners and customs of the early Romans. 4to, cloth, artistic design on side in gold and ink, red edges, $6 00

This is the first illustrated edition of this great story of the struggles and sufferings of the early Christians. It is a well-printed and sumptuously presented edition of a book which has exerted widespread influence. There are few stories which lend themselves so well to illustration as this tale of the Catacombs, and the completeness with which archæologists have explored the Christian antiquities of Rome has made it easy to fill these pages with wood-cuts which are as helpful to the narrative as they are instructive.

—— Mostly Boys. Short Stories. 16mo, cloth inked. With a Frontispiece, 75 cents

Father Finn's books are, in the opinion of the best critics, standard works in modern English literature; they are full of fascinating interest, replete with stirring and amusing incidents of college-life, and admirably adapted to the wants of our boys.

There is no doubt about the genuineness of the demand for a new story by Father Finn. His boys are genuine boys, and their growth is perfectly natural and beautiful.—The Pilot.

It is the best boys' book that ever came from the press.—Michigan Catholic.

Linked Lives. By Lady GERTRUDE DOUGLASS. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1 50

Here is a work pure without extravagance, absolutely true to human life and human nature, without the smallest compromise with the spirit of the world, strong but not aggressive, refined yet perfectly unaffected, simple yet so interesting that not the most blasé reader of fiction could lay it down unfinished.—The Tablet, London.

Monk's Pardon, The. A Historical Romance of the Time of Philip IV. of Spain. From the French of RAOUL DE NAVERY by Anna T. Sadlier. 12mo, cloth, $1 25

The fame of the author in this walk of literature is well attested by the fact that his works have passed through many editions in the mother tongue before the public demand was satiated. This is one of the author's best novels—well written, pure in style and tone.

Tales and Legends of the Middle Ages. From the Spanish of F. DE P. CAPELLA. Edited by HENRY WILSON. 16mo, cloth ornamental, gilt top, 75 cents

Anything more delightful than these tales and legends, anything better adapted to win back an interest in reading which perhaps the hot summer days have banished, can hardly be imagined. . . . The translation is excellent, the binding artistic, and the whole volume a delight.—Ave Maria.

Along its bright pages may be clearly traced the strong outlines of Mr. Egan's high ideal of manhood, and it will be but a poor-spirited boy who does not meet him halfway in the earnest purpose of the book as well as in the enjoyment of its entertaining qualities. We hope for this manly little book the wide circulation it deserves; and we say it with all due loyalty to young America, that our boys need it and should have it.—Catholic Columbian.

Brownson, Orestes A., Literary, Scientific, and Political Views of. Selected from his works, by H. F. BROWNSON. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 25

To Catholics, and especially Catholic laymen, the perusal of his writings is of great advantage, as they treat in a philosophic way topics which daily come up for solution in every-day life.—Dublin Freeman's Journal.

Christian Anthropology. By Rev. JOHN THEIN. With Introduction by Prof. Chas. G. Herbermann, LL.D. Second edition. 8vo, cloth, net, $2 50

Father Thein's book is written in a very nice, clear, light style—a style that would win one to read it to the end when once commenced. . . . What wide fields of interesting inquiry are opened up in this volume, and all traversed in a most interesting and complete way. Nothing is passed over. . . . The result has been a real masterpiece of its kind.—Irish Ecclesiastical Record.

We do not know of any other work in which the evidences from the Christian standpoint are so well massed, the points so clearly brought out, and the field of controversy so fully covered.—Catholic World.

Christ in Type and Prophecy. By Rev. A. J. MAAS, S.J., Professor of Oriental Languages in Woodstock College. 12mo, cloth, net, $2 00

The author has left no point unattended to. He has especially dealt with the subject as it is related to the views of scholars, and in spite of the learned and apparently dry character of his work, he has brought out with singular fulness and completeness the points which bear upon the diffusion of Messianic prophecy. . . . It is seldom that so thorough a work as this is published. It is full of light and strength, and the author has spared no effort in point of scholarship and research to make it both scholarly and intelligent.—Boston Herald.

Data of Modern Ethics Examined, The. By Rev. JOHN J. MING, S.J., Canisius College, Buffalo. 12mo, cloth, net, $2 00

Father Ming has dealt with the whole question with great ability and prudence. Father Ming's book is highly deserving of the most careful reading and consideration. The style is scholastic, but—we might say, therefore—clear and effective.—The Churchman (Protestant).

The style is clear and simple, and the arrangement of the book so logical that the reader is led from page to page scarcely perceiving that he is performing an intellectual labor of gravity, until a backward look reveals the distance traversed.—The Pilot.

God Knowable and Known. By Rev. MAURICE RONAYNE, S.J. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 25

The whole subject is indeed a deep and a difficult one. We incline to think that this is on the whole the most popular treatment of it which has appeared anywhere in English.—The Tablet, London.

Not only is the treatment thorough, or at least as much so as the compass of each volume would permit, and the language as near that of every-day life as the nature of the subject would allow, but application is made of the whole subject and of each part of it to the needs of the day. This is not only Catholic Philosophy in the abstract, but applied Catholic Philosophy as well. . . . Father Clarke and his colleagues have not altogether discarded scholastic terms, but have carefully explained them, and have rendered them into words that convey their meaning to men of average education. In the general plan the scholastic system has been closely adhered to throughout, but it has been clothed in a modern dress. —American Catholic Quarterly Review.

This little work in its present edition may justly be called a systematic commentary on the Instruction "Cum Magnopere," sent by the Holy See to the Fathers of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore in 1884, and incorporated by them in its decrees, Tit. X., De Judiciis Ecclesiasticis.

Natural Theology. By BERNARD BOEDDER, S.J. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 50

The author is evidently well acquainted with Mill, Spencer, Huxley, and other contemporary writers; they are quoted freely and clearly answered. The volume thus commends itself alike to those who wish to have difficulties removed and to those who desire to see the Catholic treatment of the fundamental basis of theology. —Dublin Review.

O'Brien, Rev. John, A.M. A History of the Mass and its Ceremonies in the Eastern and Western Church. Fifteenth edition. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 25

A handy volume explanatory of the Mass, its theology, ceremonies, vestments, instruments, and prayers. It is the only book on the subject in English suited to the capacity of all. Another advantage of the book is that it does not confine itself to the ceremonies and liturgical customs of any church, such as the Latin or the Greek, but gives the reader a general survey of all the churches of the East and West where a true sacrifice of the Mass exists.

Outlines of Dogmatic Theology. By Rev. SILVESTER JOSEPH HUNTER, S.J. 3 vols. 12mo, cloth, each, net, $1 50

This is the first of a series of Manuals of Catholic Theology to be issued by the Jesuit Fathers of England, similar to the Manuals of Catholic Philosophy. Courses of theology for the use of students exist in abundance, but they are all in Latin, so that they are of less use to a wide circle of readers who would wish to know something of the subject. There is no modern work in English covering the subject, and this is an attempt to supply the defect.

Praxis Synodalis. Manuale Synodi Dioecesanæ ac Provincialis Celebrandæ. Editio emendata. With a Preface by the Most Rev. M. A. CORRIGAN, D.D. Second edition. 12mo, cloth, net, 60 cents

The end the compiler had in view was to make the book serviceable to all priests, secular and regular, who attend at the Diocesan Provincial Councils. Hence the Psalms, Hymns, Prayers, Litanies, to be said on these occasions are given in full, thus doing away with the necessity of another book.

Pastoral Theology, Manuals of. Adapted from the German of Rev. I. SCHUECH, O.S.B., by Rev. B. LUEBBERMANN, Mount St. Mary's Seminary, Cincinnati.

1. The Priest in the Pulpit. A Manual of Homiletics and Catechetics. 8vo, cloth, net, $1 50

2. The Priest at the Altar. Treatise on Liturgy. In preparation. 8vo, cloth, net, $1 50

3. The Priest in the Parish. A Treatise on Pastoral Duties in General. In preparation. 8vo, cloth, net, $1 50

The German original on which the present work is based is P. Schuech's "Handbook of Pastoral Theology." The many editions through which the original has passed are a sufficient proof of its value and usefulness. Among the various text-books on this subject it has been found "the most practical, thorough, clear, and concise." This will be considered high praise when it is remembered how long and thoroughly Pastoral Theology as a distinct science has been cultivated in Germany.

The English language is wanting altogether in any work that treats ex professo of Pastoral Theology. It is believed that this first attempt to introduce it in an English garb will be heartily welcomed by the Catholic clergy; and it is hoped that the work will find a place in our seminaries, and be of great service to our zealous, hard-working priests on the mission.

Vol. III. Ecclesiastical Punishments. Third edition. 8vo, cloth, net, $2 50

Father Smith has completed a great work. He has done his brothers of the priesthood, in the English-speaking world, a great service. . . . He has done his work thoroughly and ably, leaving nothing to be desired. . . . We cannot but feel admiration, again and again, for the task he has undertaken and the manner in which he has accomplished it.—American Catholic Quarterly Review.

—— Compendium Juris Canonici, ad usum Cleri et Seminariorum hujus regionis accommodatum. Fourth edition. 8vo, cloth, net, $2 00

. . . It seems to us that it ought to supersede all the previously used text-books; for while it teaches the general principles of canon law as fully as is necessary, it has the special information which other books do not give. The work is, as text-books on this subject should be, in Latin; but Doctor Smith has thoughtfully provided in brackets translations for the technical expressions which he has had to coin. There are only four hundred and ten pages in all; but the clerical student who has mastered these pages will have a sound knowledge of the law under which he will exercise his ministry.—Catholic World.

—— The Marriage Process in the United States. 8vo, cloth, net, $2 50

In this work, the only one of its kind in English, Dr. Smith explains the origin, nature, rights, and duties of marriage, its colossal importance in society, its religious aspect; the jurisdiction of Church and State; the power and competence of Ordinaries; the nature, aim, and origin of diriment impediments; the personnel and organization of the court; the rights and duties of the judge and of the parties; the various stages in the trial; the sentence; appeals; etc., etc.

INNOCENTIUS WAPELHORST, O.S.F., S. Theol. Lector, olim Rector Sem. Salesiani et S. Liturgiæ Professor. Fifth edition. 8vo, cloth, net, $2 50

This work has received the approbation of Cardinal Gibbons and of the Most Rev. Archbishops and Right Rev. Bishops of New York, Cincinnati, Oregon, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Davenport, Wilmington, Fort Wayne, Leavenworth, Little Rock, La Crosse, Cleveland, Portland, Nesqually, Green Bay, Richmond, Louisville, Sioux Falls, Covington, Monterey and Los Angeles, Erie, Springfield, Buffalo, Marquette, Ogdensburg, and the Vicar-Apostolic of Idaho.

Extract from a long review of the book in the London Tablet:

Since the appearance of Martinucci's standard work, no more important manual of ceremonies than the present compendium has been issued from the press. . . . This book has something in which the others are wanting; this is the commendable brevity with which he [Father Wapelhorst] sets forth the Ceremonies of the Church. His work is a veritable multum in parvo, etc.

There are few books so essential to the American priest as this work, which is already deservedly popular among the clergy. It is not only a liturgical text-book, but in many respects answers the requirements of pastoral theology. . . . The book is far superior to De Herdt and much more suitable to our circumstances.—American Ecclesiastical Review.

Hunolt's Sermons. Sermons by the Rev. FRANCIS HUNOLT, Priest of the Society of Jesus and Preacher in the Cathedral of Treves. Translated from the original German edition of Cologne, 1740, by Rev. J. Allen, D.D.

These sermons are adapted to all the Sundays and Holy-days of the Year. Each set contains a full index of all the sermons, an alphabetical index of the principal subjects treated, and copious marginal notes.

The sermons are worked out in detail, but they are so orderly and in such simple language that a busy priest need find neither delay nor difficulty in availing himself of the help they offer, whilst he is further helped by the running analysis of the arguments which are placed as marginal notes throughout.—Dublin Review.

Father Hunolt's sermons sparkle with bright gems. They are deserving of a high place in the literature of the pulpit.—Catholic World.

Father Hunolt's style is spirited, interesting, searching, practical. . . . The examples are of the kind that will "stick."—The Month, London.

To our mind the distinctive feature of the work before us lies in its wealth of illustration. The author's wonderful knowledge of human nature—its follies and its weaknesses—has been largely utilized in this respect. The value of these illustrations is that they render a sermon interesting and impressive; and, moreover, they help the audience to retain afterwards what they hear. On this account Father Hunolt's sermons are valuable to priests and people alike.—Irish Ecclesiastical Record.

He has given us what is calmly and deliberately instructive, what appeals to our emotions through the assent of our understanding. For those to whom his work is chiefly addressed—"for those whose vocation it is to preach the word of God, but whose multifarious duties leave them little time for preparation"—the work will be a welcome library companion. Its doctrinal statements are clear and well-ordered; the points of the discourse are clearly noted, and the sequence of ideas set forth in a manner to impress itself easily on the memory.—The Lyceum, Dublin.

It would be quite superfluous to speak of the excellence of the spiritual writings of St. Liguori—books which have converted and sanctified souls everywhere, and which our Holy Father Pope Leo XIII. declares "should be found in the hands of all." We have only to observe that the editor's task has been creditably performed, and to express the hope that the Centenary Edition of St. Liguori's works will be a very great success. —Ave Maria.

Secret of Sanctity, The. According to St. Francis de Sales and Father Crasset, S.J. Translated from the French by Ella McMahon. Second edition. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 00

The doctrine of St. Francis de Sales, says the celebrated Bourdaloue, is a food, not of earth, but of heaven, which from the same substance nourishes, like the manna, all kinds of persons; and I can say without offending against the respect which I owe to all other writers, that, after the Holy Scriptures, there are no works that have better maintained piety among the faithful.

This is one of the best books of its kind that have appeared of recent years, and will be found exceedingly valuable, not only by directors of souls, but by religious and laity alike.—Ave Maria.

Words of Wisdom. A Concordance to the Sapiential Books. From the French. Edited by Rev. JOHN J. BELL. 12mo, cloth, net, $1 25

Under various heads the different words of wisdom are so arranged that at a glance one may know the mind of the Wise Man on this or that class of duties or virtues. One might read often maxims, detached as in the Bible, without realizing their full import, but when from here and there these scattered sentences are gathered and set in order under the subject to which they pertain, a new light is thrown on the meaning of each: obscurities often vanish and even new lines of thought are suggested.

"We know of but one true way to test the value of a dictionary, and that is to use it. We have used the volume before us, as much as opportunity would permit, and in our search have never suffered disappointment. The definitions are lucid and concise, and are framed in the terms supplied by the latest authoritative literature, rather than by purely philological method. Obsolete words are omitted, and this has made the dimensions of the book convenient and compact. In making a dictionary, the author confesses that he has found out the labor consists in eliminating the useless, rather than adding the superfluous. The value of the work before us is increased by the large number of useful reference tables in anatomy, ptomains, micrococci, etc."—The Physician and Surgeon, Ann Arbor.

Balzac (Honore De)--Cesar Birotteau.

Translated from the French. With fourteen choice illustrations by Harry C. Edwards. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound in Cloth, $1.00.

The novels of Honoré de Balzac are among the greatest works of the kind that any country has produced. That they go deeper into the human heart, represent more truly human passion, and reflect with greater accuracy the multiform phases of human life than the works of any other novelist is claimed for him by some of the foremost critics of the world. César Birotteau is one of his most beautiful and characteristic novels.

Calhoun (Major Alfred R.)--Maud Morton.

Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

"Maud Morton, by Major Calhoun, is a novel of New York life which shows the accidents and vicissitudes which overtake unprotected childhood in a great city. The heroine is left an orphan waif in the streets. Her mother, overcome by sickness and poverty, and driven from her lodgings by a relentless landlord, dies on the gas-lighted pavements. The child is picked up by a young man and carried home to his mother, by whom she is carefully nurtured and brought up to womanhood. It is with the after career of the heroine that the story principally deals. She proves to be an heiress of great wealth, and the struggle which ensues for its possession, with powerful and unscrupulous enemies, makes one of the most thrilling and fascinating stories that was ever produced. Her manly and true-hearted lover, whose loyalty and devotion are rewarded by the purest womanly affection, is a worthy counterpart of a most lovely and charming heroine. It is altogether a story of unusual interest and power, and of our own day.

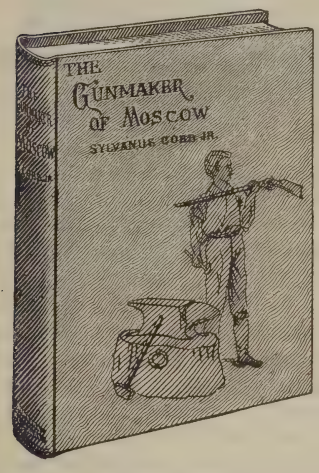
Cobb (Sylvanus, Jr.,)--Gunmaker of Moscow.

Author of "The Storm Secret," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.



"The Gunmaker of Moscow" was written expressly for and published originally in the New York Ledger in 1856.

Over twenty thousand dollars—a great sum of money for those days—were spent in advertising it. "The Gunmaker" being a great story, and having been thus extensively advertised, met with phenomenal success, and so constant has been the demand for the back numbers of the Ledger containing it, that it has been republished three times in the Ledger. Notwithstanding these republications, the demand for "The Gunmaker" still continues.

"Few American works of fiction have ever enjoyed the popularity won by 'The Gunmaker.'"—Boston Courier.

"This story ranks with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' in the number of its readers. It is one of the happiest memories of childhood of many persons now of mature years."—New York Evening Sun.

"'The Gunmaker of Moscow' is a tremendously exciting story."—New Orleans Picayune.

Dyer (Oliver)--Great Senators of the United States Forty Years Ago (1848 and 1849), With Personal Recollections and Delineations of Calhoun, Benton, Clay, Webster, General Houston, Jefferson Davis, etc. Bound in Cloth. Price, $1.00.

"Mr. Dyer's relation with the great Senators of forty years ago was one very fortunate for the acquiring of fresh impressions. It is impossible to read his reminiscences without being aware that the impressions he reports are genuine."—New York Times.

"Among the recent contributions to American history, none is worthy of more serious attention than a volume entitled 'Great Senators,' by Oliver Dyer. It would be easy to fill columns with effective extracts from this volume, but we must confine ourselves to two or three examples of incisive and impartial delineation. Mr. Dyer's analysis of Webster's individuality is the most searching that we have ever seen; indeed, it is the only one which accounts at once for the triumphs and the shortcomings of the great parliamentary champion of the Union."—New York Sun.

Mr. Dyer's book has been a great success. It is written in a brilliant and charming style, and deals with persons and a period of great interest to all Americans. While it is a delightful book for the passing hour, it is at the same time a serious contribution to American history; and one of the prominent New York daily newspapers well said: "Every library and every schoolhouse should have this contribution to our meager fund of enjoyable and instructive reminiscence." In it are told stories of Calhoun, Benton, Clay, Webster, Sam Houston and Jefferson Davis—men whose names awaken a flood of memories in the minds of all whose personal recollections extend to the times before the war, and which excite the curiosity of all who are interested in their country's history.

Grady (Henry W.)--The New South. With a

Character Sketch of Henry W. Grady, by Oliver Dyer. 16mo. Bound in Cloth. Uniform with "Great Senators." Price, $1.00.

In his letter consenting to write the series of letters which form this volume, Mr. Grady said: "It is a matter that I take great interest in, and I will give you six letters that I think will make an impression. My idea would be to deal in the first letter with the difference between the new South and the old. In the second, with the general growth of the South since the war. In the third, with the agriculture of the South. In the fourth, with the industrial status of the South. In the fifth, with the political condition of the South and its probable outcome, and touching the race problem. In the sixth, a general letter closing the series." Mr. Grady did not adhere strictly to this outline, but it affords a sufficiently clear idea of his intention and the contents of the volume. "In his letters to the New York Ledger on 'The New South,'" Mr. Dyer, in his eloquent sketch, says, "Mr. Grady gave to the world the gist and essence of all that he had been inspired to write on that subject by his love for the land of his birth, by his pride in her worth and his hope in her destiny. These letters evidently came hot from his heart; they are freighted with information, are picturesque in description, fervid and eloquent in style, honest in purpose and noble in spirit. They will long be treasured as the latest and ripest utterances of the remarkable man who wrote them."

Green (Anna Katharine)--The Forsaken Inn.

Illustrated. 12mo. 352 pages. Handsomely Bound in English Cloth, Black and Gold Stamping on Cover. Price, $1.50.

Anna Katharine Green's new novel will excite great curiosity and be widely popular. The authoress of "The Leavenworth Case" has always been considered extraordinarily clever in the construction of mystifying and exciting plots, but in her latest book she has not only eclipsed even herself in her specialty, but has combined with her story-telling gift a fascinating mixture of poetical qualities which makes "The Forsaken Inn" a work of such interest that it will not be laid down by an imaginative reader until he has reached the last line of the last chapter. The scene of the story is the Hudson, between Albany and Poughkeepsie, and the time is the close of the eighteenth century. In writing her previous books, the authoress carefully planned her work before putting pen to paper, but this story was written in a white heat, and under the spur of a moment of inspiration.

The illustrations of "The Forsaken Inn" are by Victor Perard. They are twenty-one in number, and are a beautiful embellishment of the book.

Lewis (Mrs. Harriet)--Lady Kildare. Author of "Her Double Life," "Sundered Hearts," "The Bailiff's Scheme," "The Rival Cousins," "The House of Secrets," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

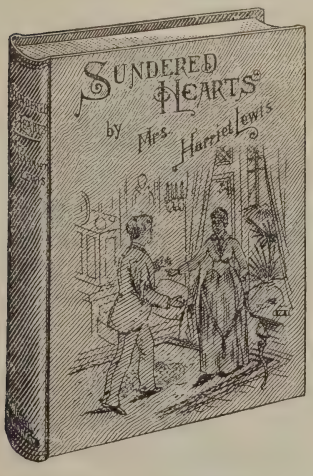
Among the most engrossing of the popular stories published in the New York Ledger in the last third of a century, is "Lady Kildare," a story not only of absorbing interest, but also of instructive value. It is an Irish tale, pure, invigorating and wholesome. In it, the writer, Mrs. Harriet Lewis, seized on the most picturesque and romantic traits in the Celtic character, and wove them into one of the most graceful of the Ledger romances.

The trials of Nora, "the Lady of Kildare," and her lovely cousin, Kathleen, the unexampled temptations to which they were exposed, their sufferings and their constancy, faith and fortitude in all situations keep the reader on the qui vive of excitement from the first paragraph in the story to the last line of the final chapter. None of Mrs. Lewis's novels has more freshness and brilliancy than "Lady Kildare," and there is none that has more contemporaneous interest.

Lewis (Mrs. Harriet)--Sundered Hearts.

Author of "Lady Kildare," "Her Double Life," "The Bailiff's Scheme," "The Rival Cousins," "The House of Secrets," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.



Mrs. Harriet Lewis, the daughter of a farmer living at Pen Yan, in the State of New York, was a woman of unquestioned genius. In her short life, she produced a considerable number of novels, all of a high average of merit. Her story, "Sundered Hearts," deals with a pathetic situation and is full of tender feeling. When two persons of loyal and trustful character, and holding to each other the most tender and intimate relations which can exist on earth, become estranged, there is a deep and solemn tragedy enacted, which affords to the novelist a subject of universal interest. This is the subject chosen by Mrs. Lewis in this novel, and the way in which she has treated it is replete with true feeling and profound interest. The plot of the novel is simple, and the reader feels from the beginning that the author is dealing with an experience which she is perfectly competent to describe, and the result is one of the most touching and satisfying of love stories.

Libbey (Laura Jean)--A Mad Betrothal; or,

Nadine's Vow. Author of "Ione," "Miss Middleton's Lover," etc. With Seven Illustrations by Arthur Lumley. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

Miss Libbey's new novel is one of the most attractive books issued this year. It is intensely interesting, and shows remarkable power of grasping the strong features of situation, incident, plot and character, which mark the successful novelist.

Libbey (Laura Jean)--Parted by Fate; or, The Mystery of Black-Tor Lighthouse. Author of "Ione," "A Mad Betrothal," etc. With Fourteen Beautiful Illustrations by Harry C. Edwards. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

Miss Libbey's novels appeal to the young, and especially to young women. They are lively and sparkling, abounding in charming sentiment and with incidents connected with courtship and marriage. There are so many complications possible in the relations of lovers that invention would seem to be an endless chain. Miss Libbey's books are among the most popular publications of the present time, and "Parted by Fate" a good example of the very best of them.

Lewis (Mrs. Harriet)--The Old Life's Shadows.

Author of "Lady Kildare," "Sundered Hearts," "The Bailiff's Scheme," "The Rival Cousins," "The House of Secrets," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

This is a novel of great power. The plot and incidents are well conceived and molded into a continuous narrative of immense interest. Nowhere has Mrs. Lewis shown greater skill and ingenuity than in the construction of this story. The scene of the story is Redruth Moor farm, in Lincolnshire, England, and its picturesque, century-old stone dwelling, which at the opening of the story is occupied by Miss Jacobea Redruth, a maiden lady of peculiar traits and masculine energy. Miss Jacob, as she is called by her neighbors, is one of those strong individualities which make their mark wherever they appear and whose doings are always full of interest. The other important characters in this story are a most charming woman and a handsome profligate. There are subordinate characters full of real life and marvelously well calculated to develop the plot and engage the interest of the reader.

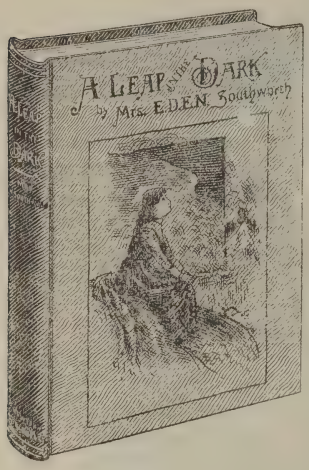
Libbey (Laura Jean)--Ione. Author of "Miss

Middleton's Lover," "A Mad Betrothal," "The Mystery of Black-Tor Lighthouse," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.

Miss Libbey is the favorite writer with thousands of her countrymen and women. She is an American, with all the national instincts and sentiments, and her stories are purely American in their characteristics and in their description of life and nature. Her stories possess the merit of being readable and pleasing. No one can take up a novel like "Ione" and put it down unread. In this respect, her readers owe her a debt of gratitude. She is never dull. "Ione" will be read, from beginning to end, with breathless interest.

Southworth (Mrs. E. D. E. N.)--A Leap in the Dark.

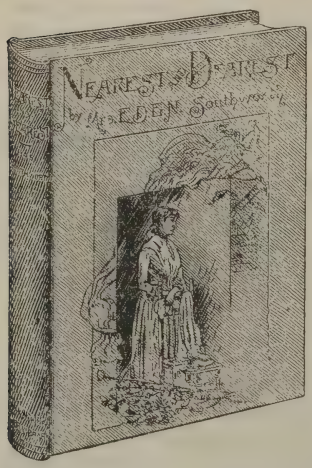
Author of "The Hidden Hand," "Unknown," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.



"A Leap in the Dark" is a story drawn from real life, and written somewhat like an autobiography. This gives a vivid interest to the narrative. The story opens with an act of desperation, which many an unhappy girl has been tempted to commit, but of which the hand of love, in this instance, wards off the terrible consequences. From a very exciting and sensational opening, Mrs. Southworth proceeds to give one of the most interesting heart histories that it has ever been our fortune to read. There are fair weather friends and friends who stand the stress of every storm of fortune. Throughout the story there is a constant succession of incidents which move the feelings. There are pictures of Canadian life, and every one who has visited Montreal will recognize the scenes which are laid in that city. There is no lack of variety in it, and the characters range a large part of Europe and America. It is one of Mrs. Southworth's most interesting novels.

Southworth (Mrs. E. D. E. N.)--Nearest and Dearest.

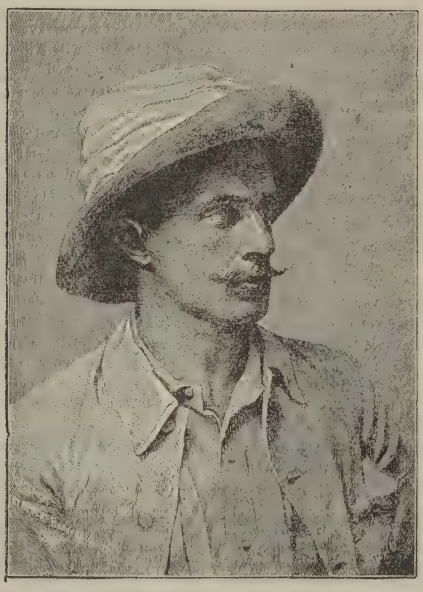
Author of "The Hidden Hand," etc., etc. Paper Cover, 50 Cents. Bound Volume, $1.00.



Mrs. Southworth's genius for picturesque description was never better illustrated than in this novel. The opening sentence prepares the reader for the narrative of the solitary and mysterious old house in which a tragic termination had been put to an old and honorable family. There is an element of mystery in the atmosphere of this story which piques curiosity and gratifies an instinct for the uncanny and supernatural which is almost universal. The mystery at the Wolf's Head Tavern might be used as a descriptive title of the novel. Like all of Mrs. Southworth's numerous works, this abounds in fine delineations of character and delightful humor. Her girls are charming, and "Nearest and Dearest" has for its heroine a lovely and winning sprite, little Nea, drawn so true to life that she seems to be personally familiar, to have been known to the reader in some previous state and condition of existence. The incidents of the story are unhackneyed and withal so novel and wonderful that they excite a feverish interest from the beginning to the end of the tale.

Ward (Herbert)--Five Years with the Congo

Cannibals. Magnificently Illustrated with many Full-Page Engravings and scores of Smaller Engravings, after Original Drawings made on the spot by the Author. Crown octavo, elegantly bound. Price, $3.00.



Sincerely Yours
Herbert Ward.

Herbert Ward's book is the record of five years spent with the most savage tribes of the far interior of Africa. It contains many facts, hitherto unknown, concerning the life, customs and superstitions of the cannibal races. It abounds with thrilling adventures, and the story it tells of risks and dangers encountered in strange places, and among wild and hostile people, is one of fascinating interest. A flood of light is thrown on the horrors and cruelties existing among the millions of Central Africa.

Mr. Ward's travels in Africa commenced in 1884, when he received an appointment in the service of the Congo Free State. He was a member of the Emin Bey Relief Expedition, and while in the service of Mr. H. M. Stanley, he made his memorable canoe journey of eleven hundred miles on the Congo.

His book contains entirely new matter about the tribes of Central Africa, will have permanent interest and value, and will be the standard work on that subject.

The Siberian Exiles.

By Col. Thos. W. Knox, Author of "The Boy Travellers," "Overland Through Asia," "Decisive Battles Since Waterloo," etc. Illustrated by Victor Perard. 8vo. Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Price, $2.00. Paper Cover, 50 Cents.

This is a novel of European and Asiatic Russia of our own times. Reading it, one would think that it belonged to the Middle Ages, when men and women were remorselessly snatched from their homes, sold into slavery, imprisoned, persecuted and killed at the caprice of local despots or robber-barons. It tells of the exile, without trial, of the head of a family, guiltless of any crime or treason, simply upon suspicion. All the exertions of his family and friends are powerless to save him from the terrors of the Siberian exile and the life of a state prisoner in the mines. Colonel Knox is familiar with the scenes and circumstances of the people about whom he writes. He has travelled in Siberia, visited the mines and prisons, seen the prisoners at work, and he gives a vivid picture of their life and sufferings. His novel is one of the most interesting and pathetic narratives which has ever been written of modern Russia, its government and people. The edition in cloth binding is a large, handsome volume with many illustrations. It is also published in the Ledger Library in paper covers, with five choice illustrations.

* * * This delineator of lowly humanity, who sings with so much fervor, pathos, humor and grace, and who has done things, perhaps, which will outlast the more laborious work of some of the older and more pretentious poets.—OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Without the poetry of James Whitcomb Riley our literature would be so much the poorer that it seems idle to state the fact. He has more perfectly mastered his instrument than any writer of dialect verse since Lowell, and I do not know why one should not frankly place him with Lowell as equally master in that kind.—W. D. HOWELLS.

HIS LATEST AND HIS HAPPIEST BOOK

A Guest at the Ludlow

A VOLUME OF HUMOROUS STORIES AND SKETCHES

By EDGAR WILSON NYE

[BILL NYE]

WITH TWENTY FULL PAGE AND TWELVE SMALLER DESIGNS, THE LATTER BY THE AUTHOR

INTRODUCTION

Go, little booklet, go
Bearing an honored name,
'Till everywhere that you have went,
They 're glad that you have came.

Bill Nye

"HIS OLD LOOK OF APPREHENSIVE CORDIALITY DID NOT LEAVE HIM UNTIL HE HAD SEEN ME CLIMB ON A LOAD OF HAY WITH MY TRUNK AND START FOR HOME."

By arrangement with Mrs. Edgar W. Nye, The Bowen-Merrill Company announce a volume of humorous stories by Bill Nye (Edgar Wilson Nye), prepared for publication by him during the last months of his life, entitled "A GUEST AT THE LUDLOW."

It is printed, bound and illustrated in a befitting style, surpassing anything heretofore issued of Mr. Nye's in book form, containing, as it does, the famous humorist's best and most finished work. Twenty-eight stories and numerous illustrations, including the author's introduction in fac-simile.

Crown 8vo, $1.25, postpaid on receipt of the price.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL CO., Publishers, INDIANAPOLIS AND KANSAS CITY.

"One touch of Riley makes the whole world kin."

James Whitcomb Riley's Works

"Such poems as 'Knee Deep in June,' 'The Days Gone By,' and 'The Orchard Lands of Long Ago' are the experiences and dreams of us all, idealized and glorified; while 'Old John Henry,' 'William Leachman,' 'Man by the Name of Bolus,' and many others, are men who pass and repass us in our daily walk, immortalized and apotheosized by his marvelous genius."

I have felt more interest in the Hoosier poet's work of late than in almost anything else which has appeared in a literary way. I tell you James Whitcomb Riley is nothing short of a born poet and a veritable genius. He gets down into the heart of a man, and in a most telling way, too. I think he is a later Hosea Biglow, quite as original as the latter and more versatile in certain respects. I own a great deal of enthusiasm for this later product of Indiana soil. This delineator of lowly humanity, who sings with so much fervor, pathos, humor and grace, and who has done things, is it not correct to say, which will long be remembered, perhaps, which will outlast the more laborious work of some of the older and more pretentious poets.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A Book for Studious Men and Women

Selections From Lucian

TRANSLATED BY.....

PROF. DEMARCHUS C. BROWN

OF BUTLER COLLEGE

Extract from Author's preface: The modern writers to whom Lucian is compared are Swift and Voltaire. Swift, in fact, is a sort of rebirth of Lucian.

Though living so long after the classic period of Attic Greek, it is remarkable how Lucian keeps the spirit of Attic prose. His style is delightful, always graceful, never turgid. It is a rare thing to find an author not "to the manner born" who has mastered language as Lucian has his Greek.

Price and Terms of the Volumes Published for the Indiana Historical Society.

Like most of the other Historical Societies of the country, the Indiana Historical Society receives no support from the State. Its publications are sold to defray the necessary expenses of preparing and issuing them. The twelve papers mentioned above are all contained in one large volume of 559 pages, 8vo, cloth, uncut, with continuous paging, and complete index. Several of the earlier numbers of this volume were destroyed by fire, and in order to make it complete these have been re-set in the same style as the later numbers. The volume is now uniform throughout. The net price is $4.25. Sent by express to any address, on receipt of the price.

The Indiana Historical Society's Proceedings from 1830 to 1880.

The publishers are also re-printing the Society's proceedings and all publications from its organization in 1830 to 1880. These publications were originally not uniform in style, and those issued in pamphlet form are very rare or out of print. Several of them were printed only in newspapers. They include papers by Pres. It is a notable historical and biographical work of permanent value, and the first adequate life of Clark—THE NATION, New York, February 1st, 1896.

HON. WM. H. ENGLISH,
Author of "The Conquest of the Country Northwest of the River Ohio."

English's Conquest of the.... Northwest

CONQUEST OF THE COUNTRY NORTH-WEST OF THE RIVER OHIO, 1778-1783 AND LIFE OF GEN. GEORGE ROGERS CLARK, ETC.

WILLIAM HAYDEN ENGLISH—lawyer, statesman, banker, and scholar—served as speaker of the House of Representatives, as Congressman, from 1853 to 1861, and is well remembered as the candidate for Vice-President on the ticket with General Hancock in 1880. An interesting character throughout life, it is as the author of this great work, whose title is above, that he now becomes especially interesting to the general public. The author, born and brought up on the borders of Clark's grant, of a family which furnished Clark three officers in his campaigns against the British posts, Kaskaskia and Vincennes, naturally felt an interest in those great events. This interest, beginning in early life, never abated, but finally assumed the form of collecting all available information in relation to the occurrences themselves, and the lives of men who participated in them and found consummation at length in the present extended publication. Both volumes of the work are copiously illustrated with portraits and stirring views. With its many thousand names it is a complete cyclopedia of Revolutionary times in the West, and the original documents published by Mr. English in fac-simile furnish a valuable background to his narrative.

"People will not look forward to posterity who never look backward to their ancestors."—EDMUND BURKE.

TO THE DESCENDANTS OF ANDREAS GARR,

Greeting:

We have the pleasure to announce that the

GARR GENEALOGY

Which Mr. John C. Garr has been compiling for the past six years, is finished, and will be sent to any address, in cloth binding, postpaid, on receipt of the price, $6.00, or in leather binding, gilt edges, $8.00.

I wish to tender my sincerest thanks to those who have so kindly assisted me in this great work, firmly believing that the result of our combined efforts can not but be satisfactory and gratifying to all concerned. I have given six of the best years of my life in order to complete this great work upon which my heart was set. Before God, I think I have done my duty, and now I place the book in your hands, believing you will patronize and support it according to its merits. EVERY LINEAL DESCENDANT OF ANDREAS GARR SHOULD HAVE A BOOK. I am having a few more copies printed than were engaged, to supply those who may yet wish to engage a book. When a form of thirty-two pages is printed, the type is then distributed without being electrotyped, so that there will positively be no second edition. The present edition will have cost me over $4,500, and I shall consider myself fortunate indeed to dispose of enough books to reimburse me for the actual cash paid out; even though I receive not one cent for my six long years of patient toil.—THE AUTHOR.

From Washington to Lincoln

Including the Administrations of Sixteen Presidents of the United States.

Col. Richard W. He knew Jefferson sixty-seven years ago, and was present at the inauguration of Andrew Jackson. He was president of the famous Panama Commission, is the oldest living member of Congress but one, and during the administration of Hayes he entered the cabinet as Secretary of the Navy.

The work is remarkably full and accurate as to the origin and growth of political parties.

In a book called THE TRENT AFFAIR, published at Indianapolis by The Bowen-Merrill Company, we have a remarkable contribution to the history of English and American relations at the beginning of the civil war.

There is not a superfluous sentence in it, and no town or college library which desires to help in the creation of American citizens, as distinguished from Anglomaniacs, can afford to dispense with Mr. Harris's book.—N. Y. Sun.

Foster (R. F.). The Whist Manual. A complete system of instruction in the game.

1 vol., cloth, gilt edges, ... $1 25

 This is not merely another treatise on whist, but a complete system of instruction of an altogether novel character; the whole subject being presented in a new light, and so arranged that any one may rapidly and effectually become familiar with all those methods which constitute the equipment of a first-class player.

Duplicate Whist and Whist Strategy. The methods of "Duplicate Whist," now given in an exhaustive form for the first time, will commend themselves to players who have recognized the fact that luck unduly predominates in the game when played according to the English "Laws of Whist." The chapters devoted to strategy will be appreciated by those who have mastered the details of the game.

The Self-Playing Whist Cards. The Cleverest and Most Practical Invention for Teaching Good Whist. This is not a new game, but an ordinary pack of playing cards, so arranged that, although dealt face down, they will play themselves. The object is to permit prearranged games, which are fine examples of whist, to be properly played by a less number of persons than is necessary in ordinary playing. One, two or three persons can play with these cards exactly as if four persons were present. At the same time these cards will indicate to each player, at every stage of the game, the manner in which sach combinations of cards as he may happen to hold would be played by an expert if he were present and held them.

 Mr. Hamilton conforms to the general whist principles, leads, and conventions adopted by the leading authorities, but he goes much further into their application to the practice of whist. He extends and discusses end plays, etc., from the points where they are usually dropped in the books. In other words, Mr. Hamilton's pages may teach the student, or the beginner, what he might not dream of or otherwise learn in even a lifetime's practice of the game.

A COMPLETE INDEX.

A radical defect of all whist text-books, and of many another book of reference, is their deficient indexes. They give a general table of contents and stop, and for handy or quick references are a failure. This index occupies seventeen pages, covering every point of the game.

Swan (H.) Colloquial French for Travelers and Students. Being No. 1 of the "Phonetic" Series of Handbooks to the Study of Languages.

Handy sized, 16mo, tastefully bound in cloth, ... $ 75

 This is the first volume of a series of hand-books destined to supplant all the Phrase-books and Conventional Manuals now in circulation, and which has two aims:

One, to give a careful analysis, for students, of the sounds employed in speaking various languages, as compared with English, with an explanation of the differences in easily-understood terms; and the other to be thoroughly useful phrase-books for travelers. For example, under the head of

"USEFUL PHRASES: FOR THOSE WHO DO NOT SPEAK MUCH FRENCH," the arrangement is as follows, viz.:

ENGLISH FORM.	FRENCH FORM.	PRONOUNCED.
I do not speak French.	Je ne parle pas Français.	Zehn parrl pah—Fronsae.
Do they speak English here?	Parle-t-on l'Anglais ici?	P a r r l-t o h n—l o n-glae-eecee?

Again: It is well enough known that a literal translation of words will by no means represent the corresponding phrases in another language; the construction and ideas are different. The basis should be the sentence, and not the single word.

Thus: Instead of using, when asking the way to the Paris Great Northern Station, a correct but cumbersome question, such as:

"Je vous demande pardon, monsieur; voudriez-vous avoir l'obligeance de m'indiquer le chemin qu'il faut que je prenne pour aller à la gare du chemin de fer du Nord?" (I beg your pardon, sir; would you have the kindness to show me the way I ought to take to go to the Northern Railway Station?) by the end of which an English speaker would often have got completely mixed, while the listener is wondering what it is about; we say:

"Pardon, monsieur; pour aller à la gare du Nord?

"Parr-dohn-m's-yoe;—poor allë—ahla gahrr dü Norr?"

(Excuse me, to go to the Northern Station?) a short phrase, and one naturally used by French people themselves, and therefore, from this alone easily recognizable even if less well pronounced.

"A more thorough, complete and altogether reliable treatise upon the subject has not yet appeared. Too much cannot be said in its praise."—N. Y. Sun.

"Crammed full of knowledge. * * * One really ought to be able to learn even to make a bicycle by reading this book, not to mention taking complete care of one."—Springfield Republican.

Zangwill (I.). The Bachelor's Club. A most amusing description of the doings of a club of twelve bachelors. The principles of the club may be summed up in its axiom that marriage was a crime against woman for which no punishment, not even exclusion from the club, could be sufficiently severe. The conditions of membership were four: No member must follow a profession involving celibacy. No member must have ever had a disappointment in love. No member must be under thirty. No duly elected member must use a latch-key.

1 vol., 12mo, cloth, illustrated with 32 designs by George Hutchinson, ... $1 50

 In "The Bachelor's Club" the author has struck a fresh vein of bizarre humor, and embodied in it a good deal of topical satire as well as quaintly expressed wisdom and epigrammatic knowledge of the world.

NEW BOOKS.

(Ready in October, 1896.)

Hugh Wynne (Free Quaker): "Sometime Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel on the staff of His Excellency, George Washington:" by Dr. S. WEIR MITCHELL, author of "When all the Woods are Green," "A Madeira Party," etc. A story never published serially, and here printed for the first time. The time covers a period of exactly thirty years from 1753 to 1783 and deals largely with the Whig Quaker, the social life of Philadelphia in the eighteenth century, and the exciting scenes of the Revolutionary War. The book is unquestionably the masterpiece of its author, and it will take high rank in American literature. It is believed that no such delightful and powerful novel of the Revolutionary period has ever been written. Among the characters in the story are Washington, Franklin, Lafayette, Benedict Arnold, and Major André. 2 vols., small 12mo, cloth, nearly 600 pages. Price, $2.00.

The Metropolitans. A good-humored satire of New York society by JEANIE DRAKE. The author's title is justified by the typical character of the hero, the heroine, and most of the minor actors. A brilliant, manly youth, meanly deprived of his inheritance, wins his way to popularity as a composer and success as a lover, by dropping his idle associates and accepting the gospel of hard work. The scene is laid mainly in the metropolis, but partly in the Arctic, whither the hero is pursued by the fair Hungarian singer who has helped his operas into popular favor. Whether in drawing-room, clubland, or Eskimo igloo, the author seems equally at home. And her knowledge of the human heart is no less intimate than her acquaintance with the circumstances and conventions of fashionable life. 12mo, about 300 pages. Price $1.25.

The Wonderful Wheel. A romance of Louisiana, by MARY TRACY EARLE. The story takes its name from a luminous wheel, that gave rise to superstitious fears in the minds of the ignorant Creoles among whom it sometimes revolved at the dead hour of night. The story of its owner's living down of the "hoodoo" that it brings upon him — and not upon him alone, but on his innocent little daughter and her fair cousin — is daintily pathetic and delightfully humorous. The little book will win its way to the hearts of all who love a tender tale told with true and delicate artistic touches. 12mo, price $1.25.

Break O' Day, by GEORGE WHARTON EDWARDS, author of "Thumb-Nail Sketches," etc. Another issue in the popular Thumb-Nail series of small books, bound in dainty leather bindings. The peculiar people of Long Codiac have found a sympathetic and acute observer in this accomplished artist, who, after making a reputation with his pencil, has found success easy of attainment with his pen. 163 pages, with a number of illustrations by the author. Price $1.00.

The Cat and the Cherub. A collection of stories by CHESTER BAILEY FERNALD. Mr. Fernald is a new writer whose very unique contributions to THE CENTURY Magazine have attracted wide attention. All of his stories printed in that periodical are in this book, with several new ones never before published. It would be hard to find so much variety in any equally small collection of short stories by a single author. 12mo, about 300 pages. Price $1.25.

Gold. A Dutch Indian novel by ANNIE LINDEN. The hero, seeking to test the depth and sincerity of an affection that has been one of the episodes of a long voyage, plunges into the remotest quarters of the East Indies in quest of a more or less mythical mountain of gold. Whether he finds it or not seems a minor matter, at the end of the book and of his quest; for he there finds the pure gold of a true woman's love, which is perhaps more than he deserved. The story will have a freshness and fascination for American readers, due no more to the novelty of the scene than to the skill of the novelist. 12mo, 258 pages. Price $1.25.

Daphne, or the Pipes of Arcadia. A comic opera, or, as the author, Miss MARGUERITE MERINGTON, calls it, "Three Acts of Singing Nonsense." The "nonsense" is very good fooling, of the Gilbertian sort—so good, indeed, that it won the $500 prize awarded by the National Conservatory of Music, three years ago, for the best libretto for a comic opera, the judges being Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Eugene Field, and others. Miss Merington is best known as the author of Mr. E. H. Sothern's successful play, "Captain Lettarblair." That she excels as a verse-writer is not surprising to those who know the fine quality of her prose. It is illustrated by F. T. Richards, of "Life." 16mo, price, $1.25.

American Highways, by Prof. NATHANIEL SOUTHGATE SHALER, of Harvard University. As the official head of the Lawrence Scientific School—the first institution in this country to include road-making in its curriculum—as a member of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, and as the author of various articles on the subject of roads and road-making, Prof. Shaler was admirably equipped to write such a book as this—a work at once scientific in method and popular in style. It sets forth the gospel of good roads with the clearness and force that distinguish every book that he has written, and will prove invaluable in directing into effective channels the rising tide of interest in the condition of our highways. Every bicycler should appreciate Prof. Shaler's advocacy of the cause he has at heart. 12mo, about 300 pages, with a number of illustrations and diagrams. Price, $1.50.

Modern French Masters. Twenty biographical and critical monographs of the most famous French Masters, written by their American pupils and admirers—in each case an American artist, chosen because of his knowledge and sympathy with the painter of whom he writes. The book is edited by Prof. JOHN C. VAN DYKE, of Rutgers College, author of "Old Dutch and Flemish Masters." It is illustrated by 66 full-page pictures (insets) chosen designedly from both wood-engravings and half-tones, placed side by side, to allow judgment as to the relative merits of the two classes of reproduction. Super-royal octavo, about 300 pages. (In preparation.)

Artist's Letters from Japan, by JOHN LA FARGE, the eminent artist. A series of papers describing life and customs in Japan. Illustrated by the author. 8vo, about 250 pages and 40 pictures, cloth, price $3.00.

Tracings, by E. SCOTT O'CONNOR. Some two hundred apothegms by a woman who has thought deeply on life, love, death, and other vital themes, and has cast her reflections into compact and striking form. The book is much more than merely clever: it is original, profound, and highly provocative of thought in the reader. In leather binding, uniform in size with "Thumb-Nail Sketches." Price $1.00.

Quotations for Occasions. A collection of about 1500 clever and appropriate quotations, from Shakspere and elsewhere, intended for use on dinner menus, invitations, concert programs, etc. (In preparation.)

The Shadow Christ, by the Rev. GERALD STANLEY LEE. A study of Christ's forerunners in the Old Testament, intended as an introduction to the study of Christ himself. A highly imaginative little book, in which an old subject is treated with an eloquence and force unusual in religious writings of the present day. (In preparation.)

Stories of a Sanctified Town, by LUCY S. FURMAN. A dozen tales telling of the experiences of a Kentucky community over which a wave of religious emotion has swept with potent and lasting effect. The stories are highly realistic and immensely amusing, but in no sense irreverent. (In preparation.)

Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail (New Edition), by THEODORE ROOSEVELT, illustrated by FREDERICK REMINGTON. Both author and artist are well-known ranchmen and hunters of big game. It is one of Mr. Roosevelt's most popular books, originally issued as a large volume, with broad margins, at $5.00; and some of Mr. Remington's most famous pictures are to be found in its pages. Price of the new edition, in handsome binding (royal 8vo) with additional pictures, $2.50.

NEW JUVENILES.

(Ready in October, 1896.)

The Century Book of Famous Americans, by ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. This is a companion volume to the popular "Century Book for Young Americans" issued two years ago, by the same author. In that work "The Story of the Government" was told in the form of a record of the adventures of a party of bright young folks in the city of Washington with a well-informed uncle. The present volume takes the same party of young folks on a trip to the historic homes of America,— Quincy, Marshfield, Monticello, Springfield, Ill., New York, Boston, and other places — and describes the early days of Washington, Lincoln, Grant, Jefferson, Webster, Clay, and other famous men. The book contains about 250 pages and nearly as many illustrations. Price $1.50.

Paper Doll Poems, by PAULINE KING. A nonsense book, written by a big child for little ones, containing pictures in imitation of the dolls cut out of paper for the amusement of children, with pictures of the kind of animals that would be likely to associate with such dolls, and verses telling of their adventures. Oblong, 6¾ x 9⅛ inches. Bound in boards, $1.00.

The Shadow Show, by PETER S. NEWELL, author of the Topsy Turvy Books, etc. This is another of Mr. Newell's unique productions, consisting of a number of pictures (printed in color), which when held up to the light and reversed produce a startling effect upon the observer. Oblong, 6¾ x 9¼ inches, with about 90 pages. Bound in boards, $1.00.

Rhymes of the States, by GARRETT NEWKIRK, illustrated by Harry Fenn. A geographical aid to young people, containing brief facts of importance regarding the different states of the Union, and novel illustrations which help boys and girls to remember the salient features of each State. There is also a page containing silhouettes of the states all drawn to the same scale — showing the relative sizes — and a page showing the rank of the several states and territories according to products and industries. About 100 pages, bound in cloth, $1.00.

Sindbad, Smith & Co., by ALBERT STEARNS, author of "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp." This is a new Arabian Nights story in which Sindbad the Sailor is revived and becomes the partner of Tom Smith, a real American boy. Their new voyages and adventures are of absorbing interest to young folks. Illustrated by Birch. 270 pages. Price $1.50.

The Swordmaker's Son, by W. O. STODDARD. A dramatic story of boy life at the beginning of the Christian era, the hero, the son of a Jewish swordmaker, who rebelled against the Roman domination of Judea. The plot brings the young hero into active participation with the very founding of Christianity, and life in Palestine and in Rome in the days of Tiberius is vividly depicted. Richly illustrated by Varian. Uniform with "The White Cave." About 300 pages. Price $1.50.

Gobolinks for Young and Old, by RUTH MCENERY STUART and ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE. A decided novelty, consisting of some grotesque pictures, being reproductions of odd-shaped blots of ink dropped on white paper and then pressed together. Each picture is accompanied by a nonsense verse, and with the book are directions for playing the game of Gobolinks. Price $1.00.

The Prize Cup, by J. T. TROWBRIDGE. One of the very best of this popular author's books, whose "Cudjo's Cave" and "Neighbor Jackwood" are so well remembered by the present generation. Illustrated by Relyea. 12mo, 234 pages. Price $1.50.

Daddy Jake (New Edition), by "UNCLE REMUS." This is one of Joel Chandler Harris's most popular books,— stories of "Uncle Remus" about "Brer B'ar," "Brer Terrapin," "Brer Fox," and other famous animals, told after dark to the well-known little boy who is the recipient of the old negro's confidences. E. W. Kemble illustrates it. It was formerly issued as a square book, but is now reset and made a companion volume to Kipling's Jungle Books. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in cloth, $1.25.

Bound Volumes of St. Nicholas. The beautifully illustrated volumes of this the greatest of all children's magazines, full of stories, serial and short, articles, poems, and jingles. Large 8vo, 1,000 pages and 1,000 pictures, in two parts, price, $4.00.

DR. SAUVEUR'S

EDUCATIONAL WORKS.

"The HENESS-SAUVEUR SYSTEM of teaching the Languages (the Natural Method) differs from that usually followed, in that the pupil learns the language which he undertakes to acquire without the aid of grammar or dictionary, purely as a spoken language, and much in the same way that a child would learn it. English is banished from the class-room; the time is used in conversation beginning with such simple elements as the familiar objects in the room may afford, and the vocabulary is formed by degrees, every day fixing in the memory the words already learned and adding others, until, in a surprisingly short time, the learner finds himself carrying on some animated discussion, of limited range to be sure at first, but with a sufficient command of his new language for the purpose. Pronunciation is acquired, and the ear formed at the same time, without the confusion which the written form of French or German is apt to create at first."—The Nation.

"You are striking at the root of the evil by showing how to teach, and by inspiring with your example, as well as with your books, many most intelligent persons to begin on a new basis the work of instruction."—Pres. D. C. GILMAN.

"I admire extremely all that I have seen of your system."—F. J. CHILD, Harvard College.

"I believe that the common methods of teaching languages, ancient or modern, to children and young persons need to be profoundly changed, and changed in the direction of your 'Natural Method.'"—Pres. CHARLES W. ELIOT.

"CAMBRIDGE, November, 1877.

"The HENESS-SAUVEUR SYSTEM is the rational way to lead the pupil to understand, speak, read, and write a foreign tongue. I would call it the Natural Method. In the hands of a spirited teacher it produces marvellous results, enabling the reader to think and express himself unconsciously in the new language he is acquiring, and to appreciate its genius and feel its niceties.

"I think it can be carried out even in the largest classes; it is so good and simple that I hope it will be fairly tried by teachers of languages. I desire to say this because I was never convinced of its practicability and excellence myself until I tried it.

"It is not superficial. On the contrary, I know of no system that calls up more mental activity in both teacher and pupil. There is nothing mechanical or merely formal in it. It lends itself to the highest teaching. Even the grammatical knowledge imparted by this method is broader than is given by any other.

"As I understand it, there is no good thing in the old system which it does not embrace, if brought in at the proper time, the fundamental idea being that, from the start, the language to be taught must be used as the only medium of instruction. The instructor proceeds by induction from the concrete to the abstract, and so connects word and phrase with the things or ideas they express that the pupil rapidly learns the use of a new instrument for expressing his thoughts by the same process by which he acquired his vernacular tongue.

"FERDINAND BÔCHER,

"Prof. of Modern Languages in Harvard College."

"PARIS, le 14 Janvier, 1878
"Rue d'Assas, No. 44.

"MONSIEUR: J'ai reçu vos deux volumes, Entretiens sur la Grammaire et Causeries avec mes Elèves.

"Je vous en remercie. J'en ai pris connaissance avec intérêt. Je suis d'accord avec vous sur l'utilité d'apprendre la langue d'abord, et de ne venir à la grammaire que subséquemment. Par ce procédé, la grammaire cesse d'être une abstraction difficile à concevoir, difficile à appliquer. Mise à sa place, elle devient à la fois plus facile, plus lumineuse, et plus féconde.

"La méthode de s'appuyer plus sur les bons écrivains que sur les grammairiens me paraît digne de tout éloge. Il est vrai qu'en ceci je ne puis être que partial; car c'est cette méthode que j'ai suivie dans mon Dictionnaire de la langue française.

"Vos chapitres sur le participe passé et sur le subjonctif ont attiré particulièrement mon attention. Vous avez beaucoup facilité la théorie et la pratique du premier. Quant au second, qui comporte tant de nuances, vous êtes un guide excellent pour toutes ces délicatesses de langage.

"Dans ce qu'on lit, vous trouverez naturel que l'on cherche son profit particulier. Ce profit particulier a été pour moi dans une série d'observations et de discussions auxquelles vous avez été conduit en examinant certains articles de mon Dictionnaire. Je ne hais pas de me voir critiqué, quand la critique est fructueuse. Je suis bien vieux, et ne puis songer à aucun travail de révision; mais mes successeurs, si j'en ai, feront bien d'extraire de votre livre ce qui me concerne, afin de le discuter et de l'approprier.

"Agréez, monsieur, l'assurance de ma haute considération.

"E. LITTRÉ."

TEXT-BOOKS.

I.—FRENCH.

Introduction to the Teaching of the Living Languages. 12mo, paper, 25 cents.

De l'Enseignement des Langues Vivantes. 12mo, paper, 25 cents.

No one ought to teach the Natural Method without getting thoroughly imbued with the contents of these little works. They will interest not pupils only, but all teachers and students of any language. As the works of the masters have preceded grammars, so should the study of the masters precede the study of grammar. After the language is well known, the study of grammar becomes a work of intelligence, full of serious enjoyment : before that time it is useless.

Causeries avec les Enfants. 12mo, $1.25.

" Je recommande toute spécialement à l'attention des professeurs les Causeries avec les enfants Elles présentent une application rigoureuse de la méthode d'enseignement décrite dans ma brochure, Introduction to the Teaching of Living Languages. Je n'ai pas perdu de vue un instant que je destinais le livre aux enfants, et aussi aux mères qui voudront enseigner elles-mêmes la langue française à leurs fils et à leurs filles.

" La conversation dans les Causeries avec les enfants est très-facile et soigneusement graduée. Le principe capital de la méthode est qu'il faut aller sans cesse du connu à l'inconnu, faisant comprendre les mots nouveaux par ceux que l'élève a déjà acquis, et sans jamais demander aucun secours à la langue anglaise. Ce principe a été appliqué dans le présent ouvrage avec l'attention la plus grande. Aussi, je le considère comme éminemment propre à introduire mes collègues dans la pratique de l'enseignement."

Petites Causeries. 12mo, $1.25.

The Petites Causeries advances a step farther in conversation, taking up many of the fables of La Fontaine, and entering into deeper and more thoughtful conversation upon them and other topics of absorbing interest. There is not a chapter but is full of fascination even to the wisest. There is no talking by rule for the sake simply of becoming learned ; but everything is natural, graceful, and beautiful. The author says : " Je les destine tout particulièrement aux premières classes des Écoles supériures (High Schools) et aux établissements qui font de l'enseignement du français une portion importante de leurs études."

La Parole Francaise. By L. SAUVEUR and A. VAN DAELL. 12mo, $1.

" Quelles sont les personnes qui doivent employer ce livre ? Celles-là qui s'intéressent peu à la littérature et qui étudient le français pour le parler seulement dans la société de tout le monde, pour voyager en France et en Europe, pour aller causer à Paris de ce dont on s'entretient tous les jours, là comme ici, comme partout. Le livre peut servir aussi aux élèves qui étudient les Petites Causeries : il ajoutera à leur vocabulaire un autre vocabulaire non moins riche que le premier et presque indispensable."

Causeries avec mes Eleves. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

A work of a higher grade for older students, who are of proper age to enter into conversation upon all topics—literature, art, politics, religion, and any theme of social interest. The Causeries avec mes Elèves is not only a book of the Natural Method, it is much more ; its wealth of words, of expressions, of thoughts, makes of it the most perfect READER that a teacher might wish for. It ought thus to find its way into every school, and be the book of all methods. The very genius of France is alive in all its pages.

"For many of his chapters, Dr. Sauveur takes some fable from La Fontaine as his theme, recites and comments upon it, illustrates it by historical reference, or digresses to some inviting collateral topic—all, be it understood, in question and answer, skilfully and sometimes even artistically managed. Molière, Pascal, a humorous passage or two from Töpffer, in the same way supply the text for chapters, which give variety and freshness to what is usually a monotonous and dry road."—The Nation.

Contes Merveilleux. 12mo, $1.50.

A book well adapted to give the fluent use of conversation, and containing a wealth of words.

Fables de la Fontaine, avec notes. $1.50.

In this selection of masterpieces, in the accompanying notes, and in the choice of extracts from different authors, expressing ideas in relation with the fables, we find the ideal conversation-book for intelligent classes. The great fabulist has found an exponent who loves and understands him and has brought him nearer to us.

Entretiens sur la Grammaire. 12mo, $1.75.

After Littré's letter it is unnecessary to write another word in praise of the most original of all French Grammars.

Grammaire Francaise pour les Anglais. 12mo, $1.50.

This work has a unique feature and one that makes it a great improvement upon any of its predecessors : it is really written for people of English tongue, which means that it encounters and overcomes those special difficulties which Americans dread when they undertake to study French. The book is no reproduction of well-known and insufficient rules ; it is original, personal, and founded on the class-room experience of one whose powers of observation and faculty of imparting knowledge have been admired by the greatest educators of this country. Dr. Sauveur says in his Preface : "C'est aux personnes de langue anglaise, que le livre est destiné. Aussi me suis-je efforcé de ne jamais oublier que ceux qui étudieront ma grammaire ne sont pas français, qu'lls ignorent nos idiotismes, qu'ils ne connaissent point et comprennent difficilement la signification de nos temps, qu'ils ont à peine une idée de notre subjonctif, que l'emploi de l'article et les règles du participe sont une nouveauté qui étonne leur esprit saxon, et qu'ils ont à apprendre même la prononciation de la langue française. De nombreux exercices terminent ma grammaire, et je fais imprimer séparément le corrigé de ces exercices. Celui-ci est destiné aux professeurs seulement et aux personnes qui étudient sans maître."

Petite Grammaire Francaise pour les Anglais. 12mo, $1.25.

Cette grammaire embrasse tout le sujet traité dans la Grammaire française pour les Anglais. Cependant, je me suis efforcé d'être assez simple dans mon style pour être compris de tous, même de ceux-là qui sont peu avancés dans l'étude du français, ou qui sont encore trop jeunes pour entendre rien à la philosophie d'une langue. Dans ce but, des exercices nombreux ont été mis dans le livre à côté des règles, et parmi ces exercices on trouvera un certain nombre de phrases anglaises et de courts extraits des auteurs anglais, destinés à être traduits par les élèves. Ils ont été choisis avec le plus grand soin, en vue d'enseigner l'application des règles, et de les faire mieux comprendre et mieux retenir."

"On a mis à la fin de cette grammaire le premier acte de Lo Dame de Lyons (The Lady of Lyons), et un chapitre des Aventures d'Alice dans le pays des merveilles (Alice's Adventures in Wonderland). On trouvera ces passages traduits dans le Corrigé des exercices qui accompagne ce livre."

II.—LATIN.

Introduction to the Teaching of the Ancient Languages. 12mo, paper, 25 cents.

"I have read with interest your 'Introduction to the Teaching of Ancient Languages,' and the first chapter of your 'Talks with Cæsar,' and desire to thank you for the advance sheets. I believe that the common methods of teaching languages, ancient or modern, to children and young persons, need to be profoundly changed, and changed in the direction of your 'Natural Method.'

"Your persevering efforts to make known your method, and to demonstrate its advantages, seem to me, therefore, to be of public service.

Believe me, dear sir, very truly yours,

PRES. CHARLES W. ELIOT, Harvard University."

The Vade Mecum of the Latinist. Thirty chapters of Cæsar, to be learned by heart. Reprinted from "Talks with Cæsar de Bello Gallico." (With accents, marks of quantity, and map of Gaul.) 12mo, paper, 25 cents.

A Word for Word Rendering into English of C. Julii Cæsar Commentarii de Bello Gallico, Book I. To accompany "Talks with Cæsar." 12mo paper, 25 cents.

Talks with Cæsar de Bello Gallico. (Colloquia Cæsariana ; Text of the First Four Books, with accents and marks of quantity ; Notes on Book First ; and an appendix on Pronunciation and Inflection. With map of Gaul.) 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"My dear Dr. Sauveur: I return by to-day's mail the proofs of your 'Talks with Cæsar,' which you sent me, and which I have read through with constantly increasing interest. The fact is, no one can stand out against your enthusiasm, to say nothing of your genius for teaching languages. I begin a skeptic ; I continue a rebel for a time ; but before I know it I surrender at discretion.

W. S. TYLER, Professor of Greek, Amherst College."

"I have the most hopeful interest in your application of the 'Natural Method' to the ancient languages. In learning Latin, it would save at least half the pupil's time, and would occupy the other half to much better purpose than by the old method, as it would exercise not his memory alone, but his reason and his imagination. I shall endeavor to interest the teachers of Latin in our public High School in your treatise, as illustrated by the 'Talks,' and shall be gratified to find them able and willing with new classes to enter upon the New Method.

DR. A. P. PEABODY, Harvard University."

A COMMON-SENSE

Elementary Conversation Grammar of the German Language,

WITH

Exercises, Readings and Conversations.

By Dr. OSCAR WEINECK.

Second Revised Edition. $1.10.

This book has been adapted to the wants of the Public Schools of New York, and especially to the new Course of Studies, as lately adopted by the Board of Education. Its material has been divided into 90 lessons, thus giving to each of the five grades eighteen lessons, to be studied in a term of 20 weeks. An appendix contains an Introduction to Letter-Writing and further material for practical conversations.

The method represented in this book has been tried by me in the different classes with the pleasing result that by its means I have been able to keep the interest of the scholars alive through all the grades, and impart to them a power of conversation never before attained by them.

DR. OSCAR WEINECK,

Instructor of German in the Public Schools of New York City.

The Living Method

FOR TEACHING AND LEARNING

How to Think in Foreign Languages,

By CHARLES F. KROEH, A.M.,

Professor of Languages in the Stevens Institute of Technology,

IS BASED ON THE FOLLOWING FACTS:

1. You cannot speak fluently in a foreign language while thinking in your own, because it takes too long to find the foreign equivalents of your words and phrases, and to arrange them idiomatically.

2. You can learn to think directly in the foreign language by associating your actions with ready-made foreign sentences which describe them; in other words, by saying what you do.

3. The LIVING METHOD furnishes you with the expressions a German, a Frenchman, a Spaniard, etc., would use to describe his daily actions from the time he rises until he goes to bed.

4. While thus learning to live in French, or German, or Spanish, etc., you are also taught how to vary your sentences and how to connect them in all the ways peculiar to the language. You do not learn to "parrot" a few sentences, but acquire a command of all the modes of expression.

5. All the mental processes involved in the exercises are instantaneous.

6. Adequate practice is given in every grammatical difficulty.

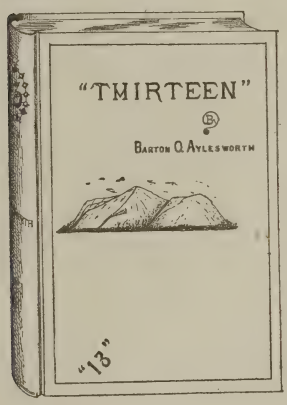
AYLESWORTH, BARTON O.

Thirteen and Twelve Others, from the Adirondacks and Elsewhere. 259 pages, 12mo, cloth $1.25
Paper..... .50



The author, braving the Pagan superstition that Thirteen is an unlucky number, launches his literary craft on its mission, saying, "If it shall succeed in annoying some and cheering others—many more of the latter than of the former, I trust—it will have done its duty and served its whole purpose. While the bee is capable of stinging, it also has the instinct of honey-making. Its saccharine processes have much to do with flowers."

The title certainly displays originality as well as courage, and our curiosity is at once whetted to learn what lies concealed within the tasteful covers which has suggested it. We find that it opens with a story of the Adirondacks, which is christened with the same remarkable designation; a party of tourists camping out in the weird solitudes of the mountains have their quietude disturbed by the discovery that they are thirteen in number, the same number which sat at the table the night our Lord was betrayed. The lurking superstition of the company is portrayed, outspoken fears of some of them are recorded, wise discussions of omens and signs are interlarded, but the philosophy of several of them breaks down when a dispatch comes to Mrs. Fearing that her married daughter is not well, and she leaves with the conviction that she is summoned to a funeral. The tragedy, however, is turned to a comedy a week or two later, when a telegram comes from the departed lady that she is a grandmother, that there are twins, and that all are doing well. Not only is the book named Thirteen, as well as the leading story, but we find also that the author has braved superstition by composing just thirteen stories for the volume. Some of these are of high excellence. A volume that contains a story of such pathos as "While There is Life There is Hope" ought to be a success, whether the number of stories is thirteen or seven. Indeed, as we read of the death of "Bebby" in the new York tenement house we almost fancied that it was a sketch from Dickens of life among the "Submerged Tenth" in London.—Christian-Evangelist.

His faith was strong; he was hopeful, earnest and industrious. He stood for the right, and consecrated all his abilities for the defense and advocacy of the right. God blessed his labors. In the course of twenty years he baptized above twelve thousand persons. He never compromised the truth. He taught it fearlessly, but kindly. We think the reading of this narrative of his life-labors will intensify the courage, strengthen the faith, quicken the activity and energy of every Christian.—Gospel Advocate.

It is a profoundly interesting record of an interesting life, and will be read with absorbing interest, and, we trust, with solid profit. We give an earnest commendation to a work which we are sure ought to do great good.—Christian Standard.

This is an interesting book, by an author competent for the work before him, and about a man in whose history we feel deep, heart-warm interest. The book is worth reading. Buy it, and you will think so.—Dr. W. H. Hopson.

I am delighted with the book. It ought to be in the households of all our brethren. Its story is thrilling, its style is simple and chaste, its spirit pure and elevating. No one can rise from its perusal without feeling he has been made a better man.—Pres. Robt. Graham.

The work is written with a graceful pen. It is written in narrative style, and makes very pleasant reading. We think Dr. Baxter has presented the portraiture of a pure, godly man, and bating his eccentricities, which were much criticized during his lifetime, an earnest and conscientious follower of Christ, whom he served with rare devotion. It is a book that should be in the library of ever Disciple of Christ, and for the sake of the surviving widow, in whose behalf it is written, we hope it will meet with an extensive sale.—American Christian Review.

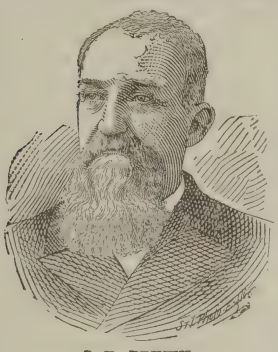
BRINEY, J. B.

The Form of Baptism. An argument designed to prove conclusively that Immersion is the only Baptism authorized by the Bible. With an answer to same by Rev. Jos. L. Tucker, D. D., Rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Mobile, Alabama, to which is appended a Rejoinder by the Author. With an Introduction by J. H. Garrison. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

The volume opens with a chapter on the laws of language and rules of interpretation. Then follows an examination of the meaning of the word baptizo, as used in Greek literature; as understood by lexicographers and scholars; as shown by the Hebrew word tabhal; and its literal use in the New Testament. Other chapters are on New Testament allusions to baptism; the voice of history; the history of affusion; ancient translations; and objections to immersion considered. All this is supplemented by a forcible recapitulation and valuable addenda.



J. B. BRINEY.

As a defense of Immersion it is the best work we have ever examined, and will furnish any minister with all the proof he may need on this question. Over two hundred authors and scholars are referred to in the work.—The Gospel Messenger (Mt. Morris, Ill.)

This is, perhaps, the strongest defense of immersion as the only form of Christian baptism that has yet been published. The value of the book has been greatly enhanced by the review given the arguments by the Rev. Jos. L. Tucker, D. D., and Mr. Briney's reply.—The Brethren Evangelist.

The appearance of this work has been eagerly looked for, and those who have anticipated a clear and strong presentation of the Scriptural form of baptism will find their anticipations realized to the fullest extent. We are glad to be able to commend this work unreservedly as a master presentation of the various arguments and evidences in favor of the Scriptural action of baptism.—The Christian Courier (Dallas, Tex.)

Mr. Briney has proved conclusively that immersion is the only form of Christian baptism taught in the Bible. He has conducted a masterly argument in a dignified style, free from personalities and a spirit of controversy, with a manifest love for the truth, and a candor which must commend him favorably to the reader.—The National Baptist (Phila., Pa.)

Mr. Briney has made an able argument, and we wonder that any one can fail to agree with him in his conclusions.—The Baptist (Baltimore, Md.)

The work furnishes a spirited discussion on the form of baptism between a Disciple and an Episcopalian. Mr. Briney has the best of the argument from beginning to end. He presents an array of proof not one pillar of which does the Episcopalian overthrow.—The Christian Enquirer (New York).

His argument is strong, well ordered and thorough. The volume is a valuable contribution to the discussion, and is creditable to the author's research and judgment.—The Watchman (Roston, Mass.)

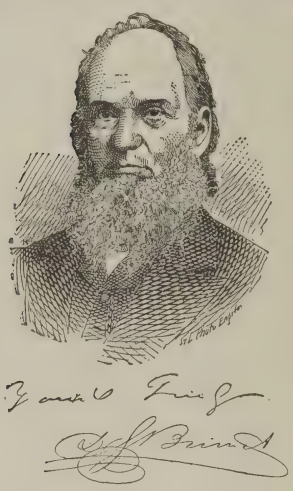
Seldom is more argument packet in so small space. He has irrefutably established his thesis that "Immersion is the only Baptism authorized by the Bible," and he has put the argument in such form as to render it appreciable to ordinary minds, and to force conviction on any but the obdurate.—Journal and Messenger (Cincinnati, Ohio).

The Temptation of Christ. 154 pages, cloth..... .75

This treatise is a devout meditation upon one of the great events in the life of our Lord. The author's aim is entirely practical. He seeks to expose the devices of Satan, and to point out the way of escape. It was written while the author was suffering from a serious accident. While shut out from the world and shut in with God, he sought to use his time profitably. His labor was not in vain. This is a capital book to put into the hands of young Christians. Indeed, the most experienced Christian can read it with profit. The publishers have done their part well. The type is large and clear; the binding is substantial.—The Christian Standard.

BURNET, DAVID STATTS.

The Christian Baptist. Seven volumes in one. Edited by Alexander Campbell, and revised by D. S. Burnet. 680 double-column pages, Leather. $3.00



To all those, without distinction, who acknowledge the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be a Revelation from God; and the New Testament as containing the Religion of Jesus Christ:—who, willing to have all religious tenets and practices tried by the Divine Word; and who feeling themselves in duty bound to search the Scriptures for themselves, in matters of Religion, are disposed to reject all doctrines and commandments of men, to obey the truth, holding fast the faith once delivered to the saints—this work is most respectfully and affectionately dedicated.—Original Dedication.

The brief annals of our American missions prove that there is no class of men so refined or savage, so high or so low, but that they may be made trophies of the Gospel, and be "brought in" to add lustre to its triumphs. What our religion has done is ample proof that it may do anything that the heart of piety can desire, if it be promulgated with the right spirit, with a loyal deference to the Master's will, by men "full of the Holy Ghost and of faith." "Not as though we had already attained, either were already perfect; but we follow after, if that we may apprehend that for which also we are apprehended of Christ Jesus. Let us, therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded; and if in anything we be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto us. Nevertheless, whereto we have attained, let us mind the same thing," and "press toward the mark for the prize of our high calling."—Extract from Preface.

The author, a scholar well read in every department of literature, presents in this volume the result of a life devoted to thought and study. He never substitutes speculation for fact, but confines himself to Religion, Nature and Society, in their truest, broadest and noblest extent. His wonderful power of reasoning, the ease with which he discusses the most recondite subjects, and the new light he throws upon whatever he touches, can not fail to interest every reader. His debates on Infidelity, Catholicism, etc., are among the ablest ever published.

CLAYTON, MRS. MARY B.

Reminiscences of Judge. J. S. Black. With steel portrait. Cloth. 1.50
Half morocco 2.50

Few men have played a more conspicuous, and as we think a worthier part in American history, and certainly there have been few better subjects for a great biography. We have in the book the most memorable and distinguished acts and periods of Judge Black's life vividly recounted by one peculiarly qualified for the work, from many considerations. Mrs. Clayton, as the daughter of the great lawyer and jurist, can write out of a full heart. Besides all, she inherits no small part of his mind, and tells her story in sprightly and easy style.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The work is a most delightful presentation of one of the greatest men that Pennsylvania has ever produced. It is intensely interesting to those who have some appreciation of the greatness of the subject, to follow the steps of Judge Black from his boyhood to a position of eminence in the councils of the nation. There is an interesting chapter of the work dealing with Judge Black's religious faith. Before his honorable life came to a close he wrote a reply to Ingersoll in the North American Review, that was a masterpiece of logic, and a crushing answer to the arch-infidel.—Lancaster Daily Intelligencer.

It is not only a wished-for and a useful, but a singularly interesting memoir of one of the most upright and powerful men of the generation now passing away. He belonged to a strongly marked and profoundly honored type of Americans, never common, and now almost extinct, of which his precursors and exemplars, Thomas H. Benton and Silas Wright, were striking representations. The line began with Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry; it ended, so far as we are yet able to perceive, with Jeremiah Black.—New York Sun.

EVEREST, H. W.

The Divine Demonstration. A Text-Book of Christian Evidences. 401 pages, 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

The pre-eminent fitness of the author for the preparation of such a work is conceded by all. The natural astuteness of his intellect, his ripe scholarship, and his long experience as an educator, through the school-room, the pulpit and the press, have conduced to make this book one of the standard productions of the age; and as such it has been recognized on all hands, irrespective of creed or sect. All who feel an interest in the triumph of the Bible, or in the great controversy between the religious and the irreligious world, no matter of what denomination or belief, will readily accord "The Divine Demonstration" a high place in the great library of the church. It is peculiarly adapted to the use of theological classes, and has been adopted as a text-book by many of the leading schools and colleges.

H. W. EVEREST.

Professors in theological schools and all Christian workers have long felt the need of such a text-book.—Journal and Messenger.

The strong arguments of this author are convincing, and his strong faith is contagious. His method is good. He does well in narrowing down the whole discussion to the nature and authority of Jesus. All the classes of evidence converge to this point. The title of the book is no misnomer—it is a demonstration.—Christian Advocate.

The author of this work is well known as one of the ripest scholars and acutest thinkers of the Christian Church. His mind has long been directed to the need of a work on the Evidences, which would meet the new class of objections which have arisen in our times, and the present volume is the result of the study and preparation of years. It has been the aim to present solid argument in a popular form, to meet every reasonable objection, and at the same time to present an overwhelming demonstration of the divine origin of the Christian religion. One chapter is devoted to a classification of objections, and a reply to them, but it has been the purpose to give a positive treatment, rather than a negative one. The argument from prophecy is concisely but fully given. Two corollaries follow the demonstration, the Canon and the Inspiration, since the authority of Christ must settle both these questions.—Christian World.

One of the most useful, most needed, and best adapted books of the year, and therefore it is not strange that it is proving one of the most popular. In work of this kind its distinguished, gifted, pious and beloved author is at his best. While this book will be helpful to every minister, church official, and Sunday-school superintendent, as well as every private member of the church of all ages, it is particularly well adapted to the wants of members of the Y. P. S. C. E. It has models of prayer, suitable for the service of the prayer-meeting, while its suggestions, meditations and instructions are pre-eminently calculated to be of service in preparation for the solemn duties that rest upon the Active Members.

HALEY, T. P.

Dawn of the Reformation in Missouri. Historical and Biographical Sketches of Pioneer Preachers and Churches connected with the Reformation in Missouri. This is a faithful record of the struggles and trials of the brave men and early churches into whose labors we have entered. It abounds in reminiscences, incidents and anecdotes, pleasing and pathetic, and some of them of thrilling interest. It is a book that should lie on the center table in every home where the great principles for which these grand men contended are cherished as true and vital. 589 pages, 12mo, cloth.... 2.00
Sheep..... 2.50
Half morocco..... 3.00

The present is the heir of the past. We build to-day on the labors of the generations which have preceded us. To be unmindful of this fact, and to be ignorant of the struggles and conflicts of those to whom we are so largely indebted for what we are, and for the vantage ground we occupy, is to be guilty of the sin of ingratitude, and to deprive ourselves of those lessons of wisdom which the past can always teach us. This book owes its right to an existence and to a wide reading, to the fact that it brings before us once more, in simple, plain and life-like sketches, the heroic men and the thrilling scenes associated with the early dawn of our Reformation in Missouri. The author was an eye-witness of many of these scenes and incidents, and a co-laborer, in his young manhood, with many of these veteran soldiers of the cross, who then lingered with us. He therefore writes largely from personal knowledge. Perhaps no other man living could have mentioned by name so large a number of the men and women associated with our pioneer churches. This gives the book a unique value and interest. It ought to be in all the families connected with our movement, especialy those who are now or have been associated with our work in Missouri. Young men entering upon the ministry should be familiar with the hardships, self-denials, the lofty conrage and the earnest zeal of the grand men who lived hard, worked hard and died poor, that the truth of the gospel might prosper in the land, and Christ's name be honored among men. A most valuable and highly prized feature of the book is the portraits of many of these old veterans, whose names are familiar, but whose faces the present generation has never seen.

B. W. JOHNSON.

This important work has been undertaken in order to meet a general wish for a New Testament with Notes, copious enough to make clear the meaning of every difficult passage; simple enough to be understood by the plainest reader, and yet concise enough to bring the Commentary within the moderate compass of two 8vo volumes and within the reach of every home. In this work the author has condensed the gleanings of costly libraries and the study of many years, and we are confident that it will be found one of the most valuable Commentaries issued in popular form.

Probably no one could be named in the Christian Church so well fitted for the task of preparation, in all respects, as B. W. Johnson. His reputation as a Bible scholar is too well known to require a word. His life has been devoted to Bible study, and his work for years has been the preparation of Bible notes. Scholarly, studious, full of reverence for the Bible, devout, with eminent power of clear, strong expression in the fewest possible words, conspicuous for his knowledge of the history, geography, and customs of Bible times, and also for his insight into the deep, spiritual meaning of the sacred text, he presents a rare combination of qualities for this work. For family reading, study and devotions, for the Sunday-school teacher, for a general understanding of the New Testament, and for Christian people of every class, we confidently commend this as the most valuable work of the kind ever published at the cost.

JOHNSON, B. W.

Young Folks in Bible Lands. Including Travels in Asia Minor, Excursions to Tarsus, Antioch and Damascus, and the Tour of Palestine, with Historical Explanations. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

Of books of travel in the lands which are hallowed by Sacred Story, there are few, and perhaps none, which will be read with such absorbing interest as this. The descriptive power of the author is well known to the reading public, but in this work he has taken special pains to write the story of his travels in the most interesting country in the world in a style which will attract the attention of young men and women and the ordinary reader. Interest is added by the sixty illustrations, many of them full-page, and altogether it is a work which will entertain, and at the same time instruct and benefit the reader. It is dedicated to "the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and to all who love Him whose life and sufferings have made Palestine a Holy Land."

The fairy tales have become immortal by their antiquity; no age or country can claim them as their own; they are a part of all ages and of all times; they seem to have no known origin, and while man exists, the truths foreshadowed by them remain the same.

J. W. M'GARVEY.

There is every indication of an honest effort to know the truth, and a candid statement of the conclusions reached. The notes are readable, passing over what is sufficiently plain, and enlarging where there is supposed to be difficulty—making a book that may be read consecutively without weariness, which cannot be said of many "popular" commentaries.—Prof. J. A. Broadus.

The comments are written in a plain, terse and pointed style. The comments and criticisms are generally sound and correct, and will doubtless be an aid to those seeking information.—Gospel Advocate.

It is certainly in advance of any popular commentary we have seen upon Matthew and Mark. The style is free from any affectation of learning. Among all our writers, none have been better schooled for such a task than Prof. McGarvey.—Record and Evangelist.

R. MILLIGAN.

President Milligan was for many years a diligent student of the Epistle to the Hebrews, having made use of it as a text-book in English and Greek exegesis for ten years; and he has lavished upon this commentary all the results of his long-continued study. We commend this work as the most satisfactory exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews that has yet been published.—J. W. McGarvey.

It is an excellent volume for general circulation. The author has succeeded much better than we ever dared to hope in condensing his thoughts and presenting them in simple style for the unlearned reader. He has succeeded in presenting such help as is needed by the student for understanding the epistle. It ought to be in every Christian family.—Isaac Errett.

President Milligan was eminently fitted for preparing this volume; being a man of most deep and fervent piety, and, above all, possessing the most ardent love for the truth, and nothing but the truth, he aimed to be safe in the use of words and expressions, and faithful to the Divine Spirit. The work should be in the hands of every lover of the pure Gospel truth.—Messenger and Laborer.

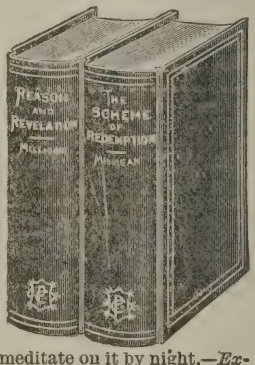
The Scheme of Redemption. As it is Revealed and taught in the Holy Scriptures. 578 pages, crown 8vo, cloth..... 2.00



In order to understand fully and perfectly any one part or element of a system it is necessary to have, in the first place, a general and comprehensive knowledge of the whole. The several elements must be viewed and considered in their relations to each other and to the whole scheme or system of which they are the component and constituent parts. . . . Just so it is with respect to the Bible. It, too, is a unit. Its primary, general and ultimate object is to develop one great and glorious system of Divine wisdom, justice, goodness, mercy and love, through Jesus Christ, for the redemption of fallen man. But, nevertheless, like nature, it has its parts; its subordinate ends and purposes; its wheels within wheels, and its systems within systems—all of which, to be perfectly understood, must be considered in their relations to each other, and to the whole system of which they are but parts. . . . To accomplish this end, in some degree, is my sole object in the following work. My former work on "Reason and Revelation" was written for the purpose of making the reader feel and realize that the Bible as a whole, and in all its several parts, is the inspired Word of God. This work is written for the purpose of helping him to comprehend its sublime and gracious contents, by leading and inducing him to study it by day and meditate on it by night.—Extract from Preface of Scheme of Redemption.

"It is designed to be a great armory for aggressive as well as defensive warfare with unbelief and irreligion, and it contains a vast amount of vigorous thought and powerful expression. In the chapter devoted to infidelity, Mr. Ingersoll receives considerable attention, but no more than he deserves, in view of his singular popularity in the western part of the country."—New York Observer (Presbyterian).

"It is a very admirable and useful book. It is made up of extracts from the writings of the greatest and best men on the greatest and most important of all subjects. These extracts are well chosen, accompanied by helpful explanatory remarks by the editor, and well arranged, constituting a volume which must be very widely useful."—C. L. GOODELL, Pastor Pilgrim Congregational Church, St. Louis.

"It collects between its covers an immense amount of thought from a great many minds, it gives the opinion of the master-minds in philosophy and theology. The selections are, in the main, judiciously made, and the principal value of the book is that it is an arsenal of weapons ready to the hand, to which any one may go for his own defense; a store-house upon which any one may draw for his own spiritual or intellectual food.—Christian Union, New York.

"I do not know whether most to admire the industry and extensive reading manifested by the author, or the fairness and wisdom of his selections. He has especially rendered a valuable service to all who desire to form their own opinions, intelligently, on the great questions of religion and morality, but who have limited opportunities of research. The most skeptical mind will be enlightened, and the most devout believer strengthened by reading the volume, and it is so constructed that one may usefully employ his spare half hours, or take it up for systematic study, to advantage. It will broaden and deepen convictions, rebuke narrow bigotry, whether of religionists or scientists, and awaken thought in even the most careless reader."—G. W. ELIOT, Chancellor of Washington University.

"Great names greet us on every page, great thoughts stand out in every paragraph. This volume is to be commended for its solid value. Its purpose is to combat error and enforce truth. It is an excellent book of reference for the thinker, the writer and the teacher. It merits a wide circulation."—The Episcopal Register, Philadelphia.

"It was a happy thought to combine the best thoughts and reasonings of the best minds on the evidences of Revealed Religion in one volume—first, because very many who desire such aid are unable to purchase or to consult these authors; second, because those who have the means to procure the original works generally need a judicious guide in their purchases. We regard it as a work of incalculable value to every Christian preacher and teacher, every honest inquirer, and every thinking Christian. It will prove an antidote to a thousand poisonous infidel objections and cavils, and an arsenal from which to draw arms in every conflict with the doubt and unbelief of the age."—Christian Standard, Cincinnati.

The historical value of these discourses cannot be over-estimated. The Disciples were then passing through a transition state, and it will be interesting, in these years, to look over the great speeches of some of the representative men of that period. This volume will afford such an opportunity, and should therefore be highly prized, not only because of its permanent value, but because it will be a rich legacy for all time.

TRIBLE, PROF. J. M.

Trible's Sermons. Twenty-three Sermons by the Late Professor of New Testament Literature in Bethany College. Cloth..... 1.00

J. M. TRIBLE.

Perhaps no volume of sermons ever issued from our press has higher claims to be regarded as Model Sermons for Young Preachers than this volume of twenty-three sermons by Prof. Trible. Their purity of style, beauty of diction, clearness of analysis, wealth of illustration and strength of argument, present an exalted ideal of the preacher's office and work. The variety of topics treated reveals an all-sided view of religion which will be a safe antidote against hobby-ism.

In these sermons will be found, blended harmoniously, two qualities which some have thought to be irreconcilable, namely: unswerving loyalty to the principles of the Reformation, to which his life was committed, and a broad, irenic spirit, and a Christian charity which recognized the true and the good wherever he saw it. There is, too, a spiritual insight and intuition about these sermons which have reminded some of the sermons of Frederick Robertson. The fervent missionary zeal which they manifest cannot fail to stimulate the rising tide of enthusiasm for missions which is one of the signs of our times. In every respect these sermons are worthy models for the study of the younger men in our ministry.—J. H. Garrison.

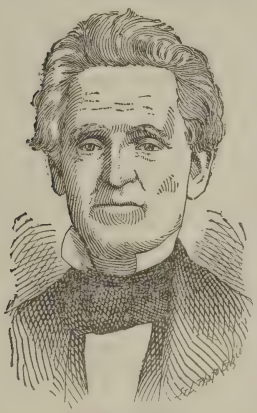
WILLIAMS, JOHN AUGUST.

Life of Elder John Smith. With some Account of the Origin and Progress of the Current Reformation. Steel portrait, 578 pages, 12mo, cloth.....$2.00



JOHN SMITH.

This work is both a biography and a history. The history of any great movement in the life of the world, is, for the most part, the record of the lives of the great men engaged in it. Great men are the figures on the dial of history. Looked at simply as a biography, this work will always rank among the most interesting books among the many that are the immediate product of the Current Reformation. President Williams, the author, is one of the most elegant, graceful writers among the Disciples of Christ, and in the skillful management of his materials has produced a volume as fascinating as a romance; while the subject of the sketch, Elder John Smith, or as he was familiarly called in Kentucky, "Raccoon John Smith," was in every way one of the most uniquely interesting characters in the pioneer days of the church in Kentucky. But beyond this, the volume possesses great value as a partial history of the earlier days of the Current Reformation in Kentucky. While many of the incidents related in the work possess the unusual claim of having been dictated to the author by Mr. Smith himself, and are, for the most part, of a personal character, yet their bearing on certain great religious events, and their influence on the cause to which that remarkable man devoted hisl ife, give them great historical interest and importance. From necessity, therefore, rather than from any design in the beginning, the author has evolved from his subject a history, in part, of the origin and progress of the Reformation in Kentucky.

The Christian-Evangelist,

EDITED BY

J. H. GARRISON and B. W. JOHNSON.

Published Weekly, ... $1.75 Per Year.

The paper circulates throughout the United States, and pleads for

The Christianity of the New Testament, taught by Christ and his Apostles, versus the theology of the creeds taught by fallible men—as the world's greatest need.

The divine confession of faith, on which Christ built his Church, versus human confessions of faith on which men have SPLIT the Church.

The unity of Christ's disciples, for which he so fervently prayed, versus the divisions in Christ's body, which his apostles so strongly condemned.

The abandonment of sectarian names and practices, based on human authority, for the common family names and the common faith, based on divine authority, versus the abandonment of Scriptural names and usages for partisan ends.

The hearty co-operation of Christians in efforts of world-wide beneficence and evangelization, versus the petty jealousies and strifes in the struggle for denominational pre-eminence.

A higher standard for the religious journal, which should be independent and unsectarian—an organ for truth only—bearing to its readers messages of good cheer, loving counsel, wholesome truth, and lofty ideals of life, versus the denominational organ devoted to building up a party, defending its creed, misrepresenting others, and sowing seeds of bitterness and strife among brethren.

The fidelity to truth which secures the approval of God, versus conformity to custom to gain the favor of men.

The protection of the home and the destruction of the saloon, versus the protection of the saloon and the destruction of the home.

Size of boot worn; 2. The length of the inside seam of the pants; 3. The hip (not waist) measurement over the pants. The regular sizes measure as follows:

A BRIEF ANALYSIS OF THE WORK.

Male Supremacy the normal relation of the Sexes. Female Subordination not a result of the Fall. Man holds this position by virtue of his fitness. Examples. His right to rule being grounded in the fitness of things, it follows that this right ceases when the fitness ceases. Therefore male supremacy may be regarded as a general, rather than a universal law. Examples. Under this law of male supremacy woman may occupy any position that she is best fitted for. Fitness measured by two factors: 1st, Qualifications; 2nd, Environment or custom. The qualifications may exist, but the environment prove unfavorable; or the environment being favorable, the qualifications may be wanting. Both must exist or woman steps beyond her sphere. Hence what may be held as a usurpation of authority in one age, may be regarded as woman's right in another, and vice versa. Women divided into two classes in the early church, the qualified and the unqualified. The environment or customs also differed. The customs of the age allowed the priestess, among the heathen, and the divinely-gifted, among the Jews, the right of public speech; while the non-gifted, both Jew and Gentile, were required to keep silence in all public assemblies. Paul addressed both these classes in the 1st Cor. Letter. The gifted woman (the prophetess) in the 11th chapter; the non-gifted, or ignorant woman, in the 14th chapter. To each he spoke in the language of existing custom. Christianity came neither to make or break the customs of the hour, but to teach the principles of the ages. Principles unchanging yet often imbedded in customs that change with the social, intellectual and moral demands of the age. Wearing the veil, and keeping silence in public assemblies, each symbolized modesty and subjection to authority. As customs, both have lost their meaning; the one has passed away, why not the other? The original meaning, or principle, imbedded in these customs—modesty and subjection to authority—not expressed in other forms, will remain forever. W. H. M.

The Life of Jesus.

By Dr. Ferdinand Piper, Professor of Theology in Berlin. Translated from the German by Wm. F. Clarke. 310 pages, cloth..... $1.00

This book does not attempt a consecutive story of the Savior's life, but is a compilation of sermons upon the overshadowing events, thereby comprehending his nature and mission. It is not, therefore, the product of one but of many minds. The German mind is renowned for its power of penetration and analysis, and the chapters of this book will therefore be of practical value to the reader for the insight which they afford of the metaphysical problems of the Christ life. But, as the sermons were delivered upon religious festival occasions, which always suggested the theme for discussion, the sermons also have a popular vein in their anniversary character. Pastors and preachers who are so often called to perform a like service, will therefore find the chapters of this book quite helpful by way of suggestions. However the reader may disagree with some of the conclusions, he cannot fail to be impressed with the piety, reverence and spiritual insight of these writers.

The Young People's Prayer-Meeting and Its Improvement.

By CAL. OGBURN. This book is the offspring of experience and observation, setting forth how to make the Young People's Prayer-meetings most interesting and profitable. It has been written, not for the young people of the past, but for those of the present and future—not for the experienced, but for the inexperienced. Price, cloth, red edges, 75 cts.

I sincerely hope that this little book, "The Young People's Prayer-Meeting," will be widely read, because it contains so many practical hints and suggestions that can be of great service to the members of Christian Endeavor Societies. I feel sure that many a Society can be greatly helped if its members study this book.—JOHN WILLIS BAER, Gen'l Sec'y of the United Societies.

The organization of the young people of the church for effective Christian work has created a demand for a literature especially adapted to work of that kind, and the recognized demand is rapidly creating the supply. This accounts for the existence of this excellent little volume now under consideration. Twenty years ago there was no demand for such a book; hence such a book was then not thought of. Now it is a reality, and its existence is timely. In it the author states clearly and explains fully how to make the young people's prayer-meetings more interesting and profitable. That there is need for help of this kind all live workers among young people will admit. That the author furnishes important help of this kind we believe will be the prompt verdict of all who read his book. It is not sectarian, but is intended for and applicable to the young people of all denominations. We doubt not that it will be found very helpful to all who will provide themselves with a copy and study it.—Religious Telescope.

The Juvenile Revival;

Or, The Philosophy of the Christian Endeavor Movement. By THOMAS CHALMERS, with Introduction by FRANCIS E. CLARK. Cloth, vermilion edge, 60 cts.

Contents.—The Soil. The Season. The Seed. The Blade. The Ear. The Full Corn.

The Christian Endeavor Movement, now eleven years old, has been so phenominal, and has assumed such a permanent character, and has already been productive of so much good, that thoughtful minds have begun to inquire into the philosophical principles underlying the movement, the same as there have been in the case of every signal religious uprising; and it is to the setting forth and elaborating of these principles that the author, writing from the standpoint of a practical pastor, has devoted this unique little volume. That it will greatly interest and benefit all thoughtful workers in the young people's movement we feel very well assured.

Nothing has been written in malice. Ridicule is a legitimate weapon to use against a ridiculous adversary.

Nehushtan

Is the unique title of a unique book, by DR. J. R. ROE. Americans! Patriots! Protestants! Would you know the political and religious peril of your country? Then read this terrible yet truthful indictment of Popery. Shall our children be free American citizens or ignorant slaves of Rome? It is an intensely interesting story, founded almost entirely on facts, in which are clearly demonstrated the advantages of education over ignorance and superstition in the upbuilding of character and correct life. The spirit of the story is commendable, for though a marked personality attaches to each of the characters and a rank antagonism exists between the two distinct classes, each personage is set forth as maintaining a respectful consideration for the rights and opinions of others that stamps the work distinctively American in every particular. The book is a large 12mo, substantially bound in cloth, clearly printed on a good quality of paper.

Lessons in Soul-Winning.

With special reference to house to house visitation. By E. H. KELLAR, Secretary of the Evangelical Alliance and Sunday-school Union of St. Louis, Mo. "A Training Class in Every Church." Motto: "Fishers of Men."

WHAT THE LEADERS SAY OF LESSONS IN SOUL-WINNING.

JOSIAH STRONG, New York City.—"Soul-Winning" contains great good sense, and many admirable suggestions. Societies of personal workers might be greatly multiplied. Every such Society should of course be a class of learners to whom this book would be helpful.

"FORM TRAINING-CLASSES AT ONCE."—The church should train men and women for personal work for Christ. The need of more workers is apparent. If Christian people expect the pastors to save the world, they will be disappointed. What can a few do among so many? Without more workers, how can the vast populations in our cities be reached and won? The churches should adopt the main suggestion and form training-classes. That can be done, and it ought to be done at once. A. MCLEAN, Cincinnati.

"MR. KELLAR HAS WRITTEN A CLASSIC."—Mr. Kellar's book aims to increase the efficiency of working Christians. It is the logical outcome of the religious awakening of recent years, as manifest in the Endeavor and similar movements. It would seize and wisely mold and utilize the desire for more efficient Christian service, conscious that the aroused religious feeling will prove to be spasmodic and evanescent, unless educated, organized and put to work. There is no other subject so worthy of careful and systematic study as this one of winning men to Christ, and Mr. Kellar has written a classic concerning it. It is not often that one finds a work so sane, so simple, so earnest, so practical, and withal so exemplary in style as this.
WM. BAYARD CRAIG, San Antonio.

HERALD OF THE COMING ONE, Boston.—In short it is a compilation of the wisest methods and suggestions of experience on soul-winning, the supreme business of the church. You cannot read this book without becoming wiser, and also better fitted for work in the Master's vineyard.

"THE BEST THING PUBLISHED."—I believe that training-classes, in ten years, will be very common. We have much to learn on this subject, and this book will be suggestive for the future as well as a help for the present. The part on "House-to-House Visitation," I believe the best thing published on that subject. It ought to be carefully studied by every city minister, and carried out in every city. It is practical and of great value. J. G. WAGGONER, Buffalo.

JOHN HENRY BARROWS, Chicago.—I like its spirit, its method and its purpose. It appears to me exceedingly helpful to many classes of Christian workers. I hope it may have a large reception and do a grand service for Christ.

FRANCIS E. CLARK, Boston.—I regard "Lessons in Soul-Winning" as a most valuable and helpful book. It affords practical instruction to many an inexperienced Christian in that rarest and most delicate of all arts—the leading of another to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Hot for the Pastor.

But few men have more varied and intensely interesting experiences than an energetic, up-to-date preacher in fossilized, antiquated churches. The story now running in the Christian-Evangelist, entitled, "Hot for the Pastor," clearly delineates some of the obstacles and besetments of a preacher's life. The characters are so clearly defined as to appear beforehand to the average preacher. But its value does not stop with the mere appreciation of the reader. The hindrances to church progress are as clearly manifest in the story as in real life, and cannot but have a reflex influence for good. It will help to clear away, as well as to define and locate difficulties hindering progress in congregational life. (In press.)..... $1.00

Hugh Carlin, or, Truth's Triumph.

By J. H. Stark. Hugh Carlin is a well-planned, well-developed, religious story, and deals with some of the modern phases of religion in a very practical and striking manner. The characters appear and deport themselves in such a realistic way that the interest of the reader grows to the end. The doctrinal features of the story are gracefully woven into the plan and make it of value as a preacher of the gospel. It is the opinion of many who have read the story that it will take high rank as a religious novel, in our literature. It has been a long time since a story has appeared which has elicited more comments or been more generally read and approved than "Hugh Carlin."..... $1.00

Whatever you do, don't fail to publish Hugh Carlin in book form, I was never more "carried away" with a story in my life.—W. J. Hudspeth.

I hope you will pubish Hugh Carlin in book form. If you do, I desire two copies.—Vernon J. Rose.

I am highly pleased with the story, and trust you will see fit to publish it in book form.—Chas. K. Piester.

Such a book cannot help but have a great influence for good over the mind of any young lady or gentleman, who might have the privilege of reading it. Such grand truths presented in such a fascinating way must not be lost.—D. N. Melick.

Hugh Carlin is too good to be dropped out of our literature. Publish it by all means.—W. D. Deweese.

The story is destined to do a great deal of good toward turning people to "the truth as it is in Christ Jesus."—Micah S. Combs, Jr.

Let us have Hugh Carlin in book form. It is splendid.—Mrs. S. C. Ireland.

We need books such as "Hugh Carlin," "On the Rock," etc., to circulate.—A. C. Roach.

Hugh Carlin has been read by myself and many of my congregation to great profit and interest.—A. B. Carpenter.

I desire to speak a word in reference to the series of articles in the Christian-Evangelist under the title of Hugh Carlin. I have in the past few weeks been among the churches in four counties, and in every locality I find the Christian-Evangelist, and all are reading Hugh Carlin,—not only Disciples, but members of other churches, as well as non-professors. Publish it in book from. Let all the congregations purchase a sufficient number and put into the homes throughout the land. The good it would accomplish could not be estimated.—J. A. DeJarnett.

ESTHER: A YOUNG MAN'S TRAGEDY: TO THE HAND THAT HAS FORGOTTEN: THE EARS THAT CANNOT HEAR: AND THE LIPS THAT SHALL SPEAK OF LOVE NO MORE FOREVER

I

WHEN is life other than a tragedy,
Whether it is played in tears from the first scene,
In sable robes and grief's mute pageantry,
For loves that died ere they had ever been,
Or whether on the edge of joys set keen,
While all the stage with laughter is agog,
Death stepping forward with an altered mien
Pulls off his mask, and speaks the epilogue?
Life is a play acted by dying men,
Where, if its heroes seem to foot it well
And go light-tongued without grimace of pain,
Death will be found anon. And who shall tell
Which part was saddest, or in youth or age,
When the tired actor stops and leaves the stage?

DENISON'S

REFERENCE INDEX

APPLICABLE TO

Dictionaries, Catalogues, Blank Books,
Directories, Commercial Reports,
Atlases, Trade Lists, Cyclopedias, Periodicals.

REFERENCE BOOKS OF ALL KINDS, ETC.

For convenience in description the letters in gold on the thin black leather in the cuttings are called PRIMARIES, and the other letters are called SECONDARIES.

It enables one to turn to any letter or subject with a single motion.

1st. If the book is lying with front cover up and it is desired to open to any word beginning with F, pass the finger under that letter on the cover into the cutting beneath it, and the book is instantly opened to the position of the volume in the above illustration.

2d. From this position one turns in the same way to any of the letters, G to L, found on the margin of the right hand page.

3d. to turn to any letter visible in the cuttings, as A to L, on the left side of the book, or M to Z on the right, place the thumb on the letter in the cutting, then grasp the adjacent leaves with the fingers, and the book is opened as before at a single motion.

The cuttings are colored, and the letters or abbreviations in the cuttings are gold or silver, on thin black leather, so that the index proves an ornament, not a blemish to the book.

It saves a large part of the time consumed in consulting books of reference, preserving them by reducing the handling, and will outlast even the best leather bindings.

This Reference Index is best and most cheaply applied in the original printing and binding of the book, and estimates will be cheerfully made printers, binders or publishers on all sorts of edition work.

Webster, Worcester and many other books are issued in large numbers in this form.

In buying books of reference be sure to specify "with Denison's Index, as shown in the cuts."

The cost per volume of Denison's Rereference Index, when applied in the original printing and binding of the book is but trifling, but when it has to be applied completely by hand, the cost is necessarily very much more, as follows:

$2.00 on each copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.
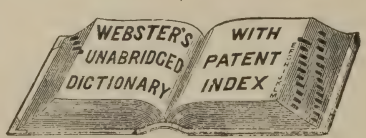
Worcester's " "
Lippincott's Gazeteer.
" Biographical Dictionary.
Harper's Latin Dictionary.
" Greek "

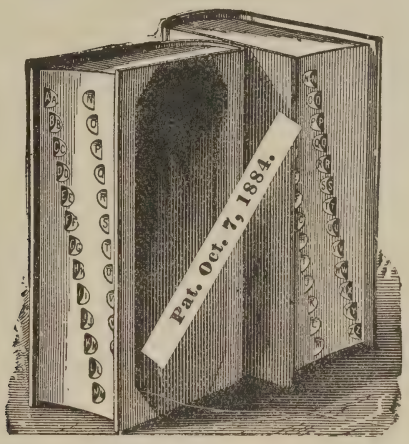
$1.50 each copy on
Adler's German and English Dictionary.
Surenne's French and English Dictionary.

$1.00 each copy on
Academic Dictionaries, etc.

From the above prices any one can readily estimate approximately the cost according to the size, of having any book indexed with Denison's Reference Index complete.



DENISON'S DUPLEX INDEX.



This differs from the Reference Index by having the "Secondaries" printed on the walls of the cuttings, instead of on the margins of the covers and leaves.

The only proper way to index a book is with a notch for each subject, as shown in the cut. This is the COMPLETE INDEX, and I do not recommend any other.

Yet for those who insist on a cheap Index, I will supply a Condense Index, with one notch for two subjects, and the index matter printed in both sides of the cutting, which is the BEST CHEAP INDEX THAT CAN BE MADE.

This index is progressive as all Indexes should be, the notches being placed at the beginning of the two subjects and looking forward; instead of being put between the subjects, and so causing a moment's hesitation and confusion in the mind in deciding which way to turn.

Some houses have advertised Indexed Bibles for One Dollar extra, but the Index was not a complete one.

A New Book for Boys.

IN SAVAGE AFRICA;

OR,

Six Years of Adventure in Congo-Land.

BY

E. J. GLAVE,

One of Stanley's Pioneer Officers.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

BY

HENRY M. STANLEY.

Beautifully illustrated with seventy-five wood cuts, half-tones, and pen and ink sketches, by

The Author, Bacher, Bridgman, Kemble, and Taber.

Every boy in the land should read this true story of the adventures of a boy of eighteen, whose longing for travel and exploration led him to enter the service of the African International Association, and to pass six years of his life in the center of the Dark Continent.

Mr. STANLEY says:

"I regard Mr. GLAVE as one who in the future will probably surpass his opportunities, and I regret, for his sake, that the opportunities which specially suit him are not so frequent as his merits deserve. In the meantime, however, let him indulge his literary aspirations, and for relief handle his pen and pencil in delineating some of his early experiences in African pioneering. I think he can do it well, to the pleasure of many stay-at-home readers in parlor and school, on the farm, and at the counter, for as every one cannot go to Africa, why may not Africa be brought to them as is here done by my friend, Mr. E. J. GLAVE."

AALESUND TO TETUAN. By CHARLES R. CORNING. A volume of Travel. 12mo. 400 pp. $2.00.

"This is no ordinary book of travel. It does not follow, to any great extent, unbeaten paths; but, with singular freshness and vivacity of style, Mr. Corning touches up the old scenes, and contributes many new incidents and features of adventure upon the Continent of Europe. We commend this volume to the long-suffering public, weary unto death of books of travel, as a production out of the usual run of school-girl effervescence." — Christian Union.

ADIRONDACK ADVENTURES. In the Wilderness; or, Camp Life in the Adirondacks. By W. H. H. MURRAY. 12mo. Illustrated, paper (G. P. Series), 50 cts. Cloth, $1.25.

"In the 'Adventures in the Wilderness,' W. H. H. Murray strikes the happy hunting-ground which long ago earned for him the popular title, 'Adirondack Murray,' and here, as in his other books, he fairly revels in the stirring incident, lively and faithful conception of character, and the powerful but delightful description of natural scenery, which have already given his work an enviable and lasting place in American literature." — Nashville American.

"ADIRONDACK TALES" SERIES, Vol. 1. "The Story that the Keg told Me," and "The Man who didn't Know Much." By W. H. H. MURRAY. Illustrated. 12mo. $1.50.

In "The Age of Fable," Mr. Bulfinch endeavored to impart the pleasures of classical learning to the English reader by presenting the stories of Pagan mythology in a form adapted to modern taste. In this volume the attempt has been made to treat in the same way the stories of the second "age of fable," — the age which witnessed the dawn of the several states of modern Europe.

CHARLES READE'S NOVELS.

There is nothing stronger in modern English fiction than the novels of Charles Reade, and it is singular that no American publisher has until now attempted to issue them in an adequate library edition. They have a strength and intensity which belong to no other modern writer. Reade is essentially dramatic in all his works, and yet one does not have the feeling that his situations are premeditated. They happen naturally, and the incidents which lead up to them are never strained or improbable. In most of his novels there was some definite underlying purpose. In "Never Too Late to Mend" he dealt with the peculiarities of the English penal system. In "Put Yourself in His Place" the industrial problem was thoroughly treated, and the effect of the trades-unions conspiracies upon the labor cause described. The treatment of the insane in English asylums, public and private, was shown in "Hard Cash." Other of his works have less apparent aim, but they are none the less entertaining. "Peg Woffington" and "Christie Johnstone" are delightful stories. Messrs. DeWolfe, Fiske & Co. have just published a handsome library edition of Reade's novels printed from new plates, in large, clear type, on excellent paper, and elegantly bound in cloth. Its appearance will again bring Reade into favor as a novelist, and open to younger readers a mine of genuine literary enjoyment.

PRACTICAL RECEIPTS AND PROCESSES,
CONTAINING 6,422 PRACTICAL RECEIPTS,

Written in a plain and popular manner, and illustrated with explanatory wood-cuts. Being a comprehensive Book of Reference for the Merchant, Manufacturer, Artisan, Amateur and Housekeeper, embracing valuable information in the Arts, Professions, Trades, Manufactures, including Medicine, Pharmacy and Domestic Economy. The scope of this work is entirely different from any other book of the kind. Besides being a complete and almost indispensable book of reference for the thousand and one receipts and articles needed in every household, farm, garden, etc., it includes clear and easily understood directions for the application of many of the Arts usually acquired only by long experience, and so divested of technicalities, or the technical terms used so fully explained, as to bring the entire subject within the comprehension of any person of ordinary intelligence. It would be difficult to find any one of the 6,422 paragraphs in this work (many of which contain several receipts) that is not worth at least the price of the book to the person desiring to apply it. A great number of them are original contributions prepared expressly for the Encyclopedia, or are to be found only in rare and costly works. The Scientific American says: "It is worthy of a place in the library of any home, work-shop, factory or laboratory." Prominent among the immense mass of subjects treated of in the book are the following:

The Art of Dyeing.
Hard, Soft and Toilet Soaps.

Distillation.
Imitation Liquors.
Wines, Cordials and Bitters.

The Metrical System.

The extent of this compilation, the care with which it has been edited and published, and the simple but thorough system of arrangement and index by which its contents are made available for use in practice, combine to render it a highly valuable book. We have examined it; the description and formulæ which it contains appear to be accurate and judiciously selected. The list of authorities quoted and consulted by Mr. Dick comprises the most eminent scientific periodicals of Europe and America, and goes far to guarantee the scientific value of his receipts. For the household, it is calculated to be a precious vade mecum; while the practitioner in any industrial art will find much in its pages of especial interest to him.--PROF. ROSSITER W. RAYMOND, in the Engineering and Mining Journal.

This work is one of the most valuable ever issued from the press. It embraces an immense variety of chemical and mechanical processes, the explanation of which is aided by a large number of engravings.—Leffel's Illustrated Mechanical News.

Mr. William B. Dick has been at the great pains of compiling, and Messrs. Dick and Fitzgerald have had the business enterprise to publish, an octavo of six hundred pages, entitled an "ENCYCLOPEDIA OF PRACTICAL RECEIPTS AND PROCESSES." It would be difficult to say what is not contained in this compilation in the way of domestic industry and household economy. We should think it might be almost invaluable as a companion, guide, philosopher, friend, and physician to the country gentleman. There is hardly an exigency in the daily routine of the family that we can imagine, in which it would not prove useful in its suggestions.—New York Evening Post.

In looking through the book one is amazed at the industry and investigation of the compiler. No department of science and art has escaped the vigilance of this universal "receipter." If you are an honest man you can find in this ENCYCLOPEDIA what an honest man desires to know; if you are a scoundrel, all the methods of counterfeiting and adulterating are ingenuously exhibited.—Boston Globe.

WHAT the Leading Papers say of

The MILWAUKEE SENTINEL says that THE BOOKMAN presents a rare budget of entertaining gossip, sketches and book reviews.

The CHURCHMAN says that the record which this already celebrated literary journal has made for itself in the brief space of a few months is remarkable, but its success can easily be measured by the enterprise and foresight of its founders, for its whole plan is novel, comprehensive and unusual. It has from the very start not only sustained its reputation for freshness, sound independent criticism, thorough and reliable workmanship in all its departments along the strong and original lines on which it has been developed, but it has advanced with every number and increased in literary value and interest.

The BOSTON COMMONWEALTH says that in this country there is no purely literary journal,—any journal addressed directly to the writing craft, to compare with THE BOOKMAN.

The ROCHESTER HERALD says that its news notes are fresh and interesting and its contributions are from some of the best known literary people, on topics of importance,—not papers merely written to fill space.

The OUTLOOK says that THE BOOKMAN strikes a distinctive note at the very start, distinguishing itself sharply from all other publications of a similar kind.

The NEW YORK TIMES says that THE BOOKMAN is, in fact, a periodical not only to be read but to use. When one has read it, he is not done with it, for it has a distinct value as a work of reference. Among our magazines there is nothing that fills the same place. It comes as the rival of none, but to take an unoccupied place,—a place, moreover, which was waiting to be occupied.

The REVIEW OF REVIEWS says that the American BOOKMAN fully justifies the modest demands of its projectors on the attention of our reading public. "The busy man's literary journal" THE BOOKMAN aspires to be, and already is.

The BOSTON HERALD says that THE BOOKMAN abundantly demonstrates by its choice contents and exquisite dress, its right to live and to represent current literary out-put. Its news notes are crisp and comprehensive, and its reviews of fresh books thoughtful and helpful to those eager to know about books before perusing them.

The ROCHESTER HERALD says that since its first issue, every succeeding number has been better than its predecessor. The fact is THE BOOKMAN found a large and roomy field for itself in this country, which it proceeded to fill to a "t."

The MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE says that this illustrated literary journal, in the short months of its existence, has attained a remarkable success. It is not only valuable as a serial for the passing hour, but also as a permanent book of reference, containing everything of interest in current literature.

The BOSTON BEACON says that we strongly recommend it to all who wish to be well informed upon what is going on in the Book world of to-day.

The BUFFALO COMMERCIAL says that there has been no magazine that can show anything like the record THE BOOKMAN has made in rapidly working itself into public favor, reaching a high standard in freshness of literary news and excellence of criticism, and maintaining that standard without sign of falling off. The February number is most attractive, and we are confronted with a feast where so many "fat things" are on the menu that it is hard to choose.

The BUFFALO COURIER says that THE BOOKMAN is making itself indispensable to everybody who loves literature and gossip about literature.

The BOSTON TIMES says that THE BOOKMAN for February ends its second volume and has proved that a literary magazine can be something more than an advertising medium for new books. There are other excellent magazines of its kind, but none that occupy the same place that THE BOOKMAN has made for itself.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY, Publishers,

THE BOOKMAN

The BOSTON TIMES says that THE BOOKMAN is almost a necessity to literary men and to general readers.

The BOSTON CONGREGATIONALIST says that THE BOOKMAN has taken rank surpassed by none and equalled by hardly any of the journals of its character. We do not see how any literary worker or any one of literary tastes and studies can afford to be without it. Its special features are variety and abundance of material, although its high literary quality is never sacrificed.

The MINNEAPOLIS TIMES says that THE BOOKMAN surpasses any publication of its kind which has appeared in this country.

The CHICAGO INTERIOR says that the book reviews are good, and the literary gossip is interesting and more authoritative than in most other magazines. THE BOOKMAN is easily the leader among periodicals of its kind.

The CHICAGO JOURNAL says that THE BOOKMAN is rapidly taking its place as the leading monthly of the United States. The October number contains not only a wealth of interesting matter for the unprofessional reader, but it presents much material of the highest technical value to writers.

The BUFFALO COURIER says that it is not easy to say too much in praise of THE BOOKMAN, Dodd, Mead & Co.'s new monthly. In many respects it fills the requirements of an ideal literary monthly.

The NEW YORK HERALD says that there is a feast of good literature in the October number of THE BOOKMAN.

GEORGE HAMLIN FITCH Some Suggestions in Regard to the Reading of Magazines and other Periodicals in THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE says: Of literary magazines and papers, which deal exclusively with reviews of new books and the news and comment of literature, by far the most valuable is THE BOOKMAN. It is admirably edited, and it gives more fresh news about books and the writers of books than any three other journals. It is curious that no one started such a magazine before, for its patronage ought to be generous.

The BOSTON TIMES says that there are few magazines in which one sees so many famous names among the writers of articles, and for the bookman's table there could be no better companion.

The CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER says that the February number of THE BOOKMAN completes the second volume of this literary monthly, which is the only one of its kind and hardly likely to have a successful rival as long as it keeps up the high standard of the first two volumes.

The BOSTON HOME JOURNAL says that THE BOOKMAN has made for itself a name, fame, and place which are but its just deserts. We know of no other publication which so effectually serves to keep the public abreast of current literature and authors. It has a life and liveliness, a pretty turn of wit, and a familiar tone which are not usually associated with literary magazines, and which never overstep the bounds of courtesy and intelligence.

The CHICAGO INTERIOR says that THE BOOKMAN is so indispensable that we marvel that we lived so long without it. A handsome bound volume of the first six numbers is a book to be placed in the forefront of the library and kept there.

The BOSTON ADVERTISER says that THE BOOKMAN is, as it deserves to be, a remarkable success, and becomes more and more indispensable to those who wish to keep in touch with the literary thought of the time.

The BOSTON TRADE MONTHLY says that there is no literary journal devoted strictly to the book-field, which, in our estimation, is so valuable and full of interest as THE BOOKMAN. For one who desires to gain an insight into current literature, we would recommend this in preference to anything of its kind which has, so far, come to our notice.

THE BOOKMAN.

An Illustrated Literary Journal.

English Editor:—W. ROBERTSON NICOLL, M.A., LL.D.
American Editors:—Prof. HARRY THURSTON PECK,
of Columbia College, N. Y.,
—JAMES MACARTHUR.

THE BOOKMAN has been a distinct success since its appearance in February, 1895. It started with the assumption that there is ample room and a sufficient clientèle among the great multitude of readers in America for a literary journal of the same character as the English BOOKMAN, and its brief history has already thoroughly justified its existence. The Churchman says: That the record which this already celebrated literary journal has made for itself in the brief space of a few months is remarkable, but its success can easily be measured by the enterprise and foresight of its founders, for its whole plan is novel, comprehensive and unusual. It has from the very start not only sustained its reputation for freshness, sound independent criticism, thorough and reliable workmanship in all its departments along the strong and original lines on which it has been developed, but it has advanced with every number and increased in literary value and interest.

WHILE THE New York Times claims: That the BOOKMAN is, in fact, a periodical not only to be read but to use. When one has read it, he is not done with it, for it has a distinct value as a work of reference. Among our magazines there is nothing that fills the same place. It comes as the rival of none, but to take an unoccupied place,—a place, moreover, which was waiting to be occupied.

WITHIN the compass of a monthly journal the BOOKMAN has been able to embrace all parts of current literature, and we are warranted in stating that it not only meets the needs of the vast majority of readers, but will cover in the course of the year at least as much ground as the weekly periodicals, and at less expense. The BOOKMAN in brief has proved to be, as a contemporary puts it, a vade mecum for everybody who reads or writes.

IN ADDITION to the features which have made THE BOOKMAN popular with its constituency, we are able to announce (in co-operation with the Outlook) for 1896 the serial publication of Ian Maclaren's first novel, Kate Carnegie, with illustrations by Frederick C. Gordon, who visited Drumtochty for the purpose of illustrating "A Doctor of the Old School," and which Ian Maclaren says has been illustrated "after an admirable and understanding fashion." The time is early in this century; and the love story of a Covenanter minister and a girl of Jacobite descent.

CHRONICLE AND COMMENT.—THE BOOKMAN is unusually complete and fresh in the matter of news. By its means the latest Literary Gossip, American, British and Continental, is brought to readers in the most remote parts of the country.

NEW WRITERS.—THE BOOKMAN will continue to give biographical sketches of new and rising authors of the day. Portraits and other illustrations will also be given.

MISCELLANEOUS LITERARY ARTICLES.—THE BOOKMAN will be noted as heretofore for its timely and important miscellaneous articles. The Series of Living Critics begun in the October number will be continued throughout the year; also that on Neglected Books. The interesting papers which have appeared on the Old Booksellers of New York will be followed by several on the Old Booksellers of Boston.

NEW BOOKS.—The Bookman especially aims at giving prompt reviews of new books by competent critics. Novel Notes has been found to be a valuable guide to readers in choosing works of fiction.

OUR LONDON LETTER.—The Bookman contains a London Letter by Dr. Robertson Nicoll, who has gained a reputation for being one of the most vivacious and brilliant writers in the journalism of to-day.

PARIS LETTER.—The Bookman also publishes a Paris Letter by Robert H. Sherard, who wields an equally brilliant pen.

CONTINENTAL AND EDUCATIONAL SURVEY.—The Bookman surveys periodically the field of Continental literature and the latest educational publications.

AMONG THE LIBRARIES.—The Bookman gives especial attention to Library Economy and accurate news from the great libraries of the world.

BIBLIOGRAPHY.—The Bookman contains matters of interest to collectors of rare books and bibliographers, including the art of book-making on its technical side.

THE BOOK MART.—The Bookman, under its department, "The Book Mart," presents facts of an interesting and novel nature alike to Bookreaders, Book-buyers and Booksellers. There is an Eastern and Western letter embracing the conditions of the book market during the month; a list of the best six selling books of the month from leading booksellers throughout the country, whose hearty co-operation has been secured; a list, also, of the new books published during the month, American, British and Continental.

FINALLY, The Bookman aims at interesting all connected with books, and at being thoroughly readable. For this purpose the co-operation of some of the ablest writers and some of the leading booksellers in Great Britain and America has been obtained. Among those who have already contributed to The Bookman, and who have undertaken to contribute in the future, are the following :

A FEW COMMENTS

GEORGE EDWARD REED, D.D., LL.D., President Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., says:
"Perhaps the best thing I can say for THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA is, that within the last three weeks I have given my own set of Britannica in exchange for THE INTERNATIONAL and am much pleased with the change. It is up-to-date, concise, and yet sufficiently full and explicit. For general use it is one of the very best Cyclopædias now before the market."

A. H. FETTEROLF, LL.D., President of Girard College, Philadelphia, Pa., says:
"I find THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA very satisfactory. It meets my wants entirely."

F. A. MARCH, LL.D., L.H.D., Librarian of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., says:
"THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA is a very useful addition to the works of reference in our reading room. It is the surest and quickest means of getting information about matters and things in America and on Americans that the big Cyclopædias are too big to notice, and about all sorts of subjects to which students most often wish to refer."

E. BENJAMIN ANDREWS, D.D., LL.D., President of Brown University, says:
"Among the many encyclopædias now available, nearly all possessing excellencies in various points, THE INTERNATIONAL is one of the best. Many of its articles are marvels of comprehensiveness and of concise and accurate statement."

Hon. CHAS. R. SKINNER, State Supervisor Institutes and Training Classes, says:
"It seems to me that the privileges now within the reach of school districts to purchase and care for libraries, should place THE INTERNATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA in every progressive school district of the State. It is a proper work to follow a Dictionary, and should precede works of a miscellaneous character."

ALBION W. SMALL, Ph.D., President of Colby University, Waterville, Me., says:
"On topics about which I am competent to judge, I have found THE INTERNATIONAL perfectly authoritative, and should recommend it as likely to meet the wants of all who wish for a treasury of facts rather than a collection of scientific treatises."
